Town Meeting finished in one day

Wilmington voters were able to wrap up the 1986 annual town meeting in one day. Two controversial articles never made it to the floor for debate, shortening the meeting by hours. The meeting lasted about nine and a half hours.

The proponents of Article 25 asked that it be passed over. The article would have rezoned to R60 all residential land held in lots with greater than 60,000 sq. ft. The article will be brought back to a later town meeting.

"There's a lot of support for this article, but there's also a lot of confusion," said proponent Alan Michel.

An article which would have rezoned the Chisholm milk farm from R60 to R20 was withdrawn.

The evening session of the town meeting led off with Article 21, a proposal by members of the Finance Committee to have new positions created only at annual town meeting. In recent years, the town manager has requested new positions at special town meetings.

Fincom Chairman Mark Lutz said the committee believed that this sort of request should be before the fincom for budget review prior to annual town meeting.

Former selectman Carl Backman called it a basic question of policy and philosophy. "I feel that the fincom is stepping beyond the bounds of advice and consent." He said the article would usurp the powers of the town manager.

The article did not pass.

The voting procedure was changed for the vote on Article 11, to allow for paper ballots. The question was whether Wilmington should break away from the Reading Municipal Light Dept.

Selectman Bob Cain gave a history of the proceedings to date, from the first refusal of the Reading commissioners to meet with representatives from Wilmington.

Nicki Johnson, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce task force on electrical power, spoke confidently. "We feel we are going to win a victory before the D.P.U."

Mike Walsh of Dorothy Avenue said he had dealings with Reading Light for years, most of them negative. He asked if the town had sought to have a representative seated on the Reading Light Board.

Selectman Rocco DePasquale said that representation was not provided in the Acts of 1908, since most municipal plants serve only one town.

But he cited Wilmington's lack of representation as a possible advantage. "Since we do not have representation on the Reading board," he said, "there are legal minds that say we are not a part of that (Seabrook) debt."

That Seabrook debt will be a key factor in the economics of breaking away. The costs of the Seabrook nuclear plant will greatly increase the cost of power sold by Reading. If Wilmington breaks away, will the state DPU assess part of Reading's debt to Wilmington customers, or will Reading still have to pick up their entire debt?

"If anybody is going to be making a profit selling power to Wilmington, it should be the town of Wilmington," said Selectman Jim Stewart.

The voters agreed. The vote, was 380 to 22.

Article 30 passed easily, rezoning land near the North Wilmington parking lot to General Business.

Attorney Joseph Courtney moved for reconsideration of Article 25. The motion was defeated, thus ensuring that the article could not be brought up again.

Voters turned down Article 22, a proposal by Gerry O'Reilly to set aside the Walker School site as a permanent playground.

Sean O'Beirne of Hillside Way proposed Article 26. He said that new nursing homes are very big and very expensive. The nursing home proposed for Hillside Way, he said, would have 120 beds plus an 18-patient day-care facility.

The article would have eliminated nursing homes as a permitted use in residential zones.

"What I do question is their coming into an area and building a nursing home against the wishes of the neighbors," O'Beirne said.

Speaking for the company which had proposed the nursing home, Attorney Joseph Courtney said that the effect of the article would be that there would be no nursing homes allowed in Wilmington, since there was no general business land in Wilmington suitable for a nursing home.

"I happen to agree with the people on Chestnut Street. This (Hillside Way) is a poor location. But this is a terrible example of overkill."

John Tressler of Mediplex, the firm which made the Hillside Way proposal, said that the company has been looking for a more acceptable site within the town. This article would prevent them from finding another site.

Bernard McMahon said he felt that a nursing home belonged in a residential area.

Arthur Smith called the article ill-conceived, saying that it would make it very difficult to improve or expand the Regional Health Center.

Rep. Jim Miceli spoke in favor of the article, claiming that since local people would be on Medicaid, the nursing home would be filled by people from wealth areas like Beverly and Manchester.

Nursing homes belong in a business zoned area, he said.

Selectman Jim Stewart asked what effect the article would have on the Mediplex proposal.

Town Counsel Alan Altman said that two plans have been submitted for the Hillside Way site. One was for a nursing home, submitted on February 11. The article, if passed, would not defeat the proposal.

Special Town Meeting set for June 9

by Arlene Surprenant

The Wilmington Board of Selectmen Monday night signed the warrant for a special town meeting slated for the Shriners' Auditorium June 9 at 7:30 p.m., despite some confusion about the number of articles on the warrant itself.

In the end, they accepted the four articles listed and agreed to wait until the close of business next Monday to accept a fifth article and the mandatory 100 signatures required to accompany it.

The fifth article is the same one brought up at two prior meetings. It would authorize selectmen to purchase or take by eminent domain 53 acres of land off Burlington Avenue and turn that land over to the Conservation Commission. It would also ask the town to appropriate the necessary funds for the landtaking.

Jim Stewart felt it was the town's "obligation" to allow the petitioner to continue with the article, though he felt the board shouldn't be put in the position of sponsoring the article.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski

said though he hasn't been approached by anyone to place the article on June's warrant, he did have the article drawn up so the petitioner wouldn't have to incur further advertising costs.

Adding to further confusion over the warrant was a request by Shawshen Tech school committee-men Kevin Sowyrda and John Gillis to reconsider the Tech budget at June's special town meeting. This could fall under Article One which, if passed, would allow the town to appropriate or transfer funds for the operation of various town departments. Article One would also cover the first year debt service for the $1.25 million bond issue for additions to the WHS renovation project.

Sowyrda claimed that Stapczynski's statement at town meeting that the first year payment for a five year bond issue for Tech roof repair and shop equipment was included in both Article 13 and the budget was erroneous. He said it was his understanding that the payment was not included in the budget figure and that the Town

It's YOUR Money

by Joyce K. Brisbois
Certified Public Accountant
BEWARE THE

A.M.T.

Have you been jealous -- or angry -- thinking about billionaires who owe no tax come April 15? The Alternative Minimum Tax was created to catch these people, but others have been caught in its web.

If a considerable amount of your income consists of preference items -- long-term capital gains, accelerated depreciation, etc. -- you may be liable for the A.M.T. Figure your tax both ways, then pay the higher figure. Start with adjusted gross income, from which certain deductions are permitted. Then ADD the preference items and SUBTRACT a large preference exemption to find your taxable income.

Alternative minimum taxing is OPPOSITE everything you're accustomed to. Preference items that usually save you money, like capital gains, now work against you. And ordinary income, which you normally try to minimize, is taxed at only 20 percent.

Obviously you can't wait until the last minute to plan for the A.M.T. If you're selling property, you may want an installment sale to minimize the tax bite. Check with an expert accountant.

Tax planning is a specialty at Joyce K. Brisbois, C.P.A., 8 Middlesex Ave., P.O. Box 176, Wilmington, MA 01887 658-5034.

Scenes at the Wilmington Town Meeting

Wilmington fincom Chairman Mark Lutz was one of the key players at Saturday's Annual Town Meeting.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski made a donation to the Chemical People Task Force at its table outside the Wilmington Town Meeting. Anne Linchan was happy to accept.

Sean O'Beirne of Hillside Way was the sponsor of an article which would have disallowed nursing homes in a residential area. The article lost.

Former selectman Aldo Cairra spoke against the article which would have eliminated nursing homes from residential areas. He said that the Tewksbury Hospital, of which he is deputy superintendent, has a waiting list of 80 people, many of whom are from the Tewksbury-Wilmington area.

Voting by paper ballots was used for the question of whether Wilmington should break away from Reading Light. Voters were in favor of the split, 380 to 22. Margaret Wagstaff is shown checking in with teller Mary Woods.

Moderator Michael Cairra is firm but fair in his control of the town meeting.

Tewksbury was almost named Wamesit

by Mike Kelley

Have you ever heard the expression, "What's in a name?" Take Tewksbury for instance. It's the name of your town, right? Well, back in 1725 when the Founding Fathers got together to form up this town the name Tewksbury was not on their top 10 list of town names.

According to historical information at the town library, the name of this town was originally Wamesit, taken from the name of the local tribe of Indians who lived on town land in the early days of Colonial settlement. The Wamesits were a small tribe of 15 families totaling about 75 people. They were part of the larger Pawtucket Indian Family, one of the five great nations of Indians in this area.

The Wamesits lived on 2500 acres of land set aside for them by the Colonial government, known as the General Court, which at that time was located in the Boston-Cambridge area. The Indian land or reservation as it was also called, was a section of fertile real estate which fell between the Concord and Merrimac Rivers. The greater part of the tribe resided along the Eastern land area where the two rivers are joined. Others of the tribe lived near Long Pond and Round Pond.

Upon this land area they farmed, hunted, fished and survived as all Native Americans had done for centuries before them. The soil was rich and provided an abundance of corn and other vegetables, which was harvested and stored for use during the long, cold winters. After the harvest the men would take to the woods and bring home deer and other wild creatures such as rabbits, raccoon, and geese for the tribal cooking pots. The rivers provided such seasonal fish as salmon, shads, eels, sturgeon, as well as other types. But life was not always so easy for the Wamesits. Terrible sickness and disease had swept over many tribes in earlier years. Some tribes were reduced from many hundreds to less than 100, like Wamesits. Smallpox, brought over from Europe by the settlers, devastated the Indian population.

Then their lives began to change forever. The General Court had granted land in the Billerica area to a group of early settlers, and these people moved out to the wilderness and began to carve out their new homesteads, cutting down and clearing acres of trees for farming. Eventually these settlers formed the township of Billerica. Billerica at that time was some 35 miles in area. The Wamesits, however, were not too concerned with this development, as they were granted land as we have mentioned before. As long as no one tried to take their 2500 acres of land, they could continue to live in peace as they had done before the Colonists arrived. Or so they thought. Unfortunately for the Wamesits, our forefathers did not come here for a visit. They came to live, permanently!

As more and more Colonial settlers arrived in Boston and moved out to Billerica, the further they expanded into the wilderness in search of more farmland. These settlers now began to cast their hungry sights on the land of the Wamesits.

When the King Phillip's war broke out (1675-76) the Colonial settlers got their chance. The war itself did a lot to destroy the independent powers of the Indian tribes and there was much cruelty committed on both sides. This brought an end to the earlier peaceful relations that had existed between the Indians and Colonists. In fear of their lives and wishing to remain out of conflict with the local settlers, the small Wamesit Tribe packed up and moved to the north country, leaving only a handful of their family behind who evidently desired to remain on the reservation.

Once hostilities ended, the tribe returned home only to find the settlers had taken much of their land. With the loss of their 2500 acres or pretty much close to it, the bulk of the tribe decided it was time to throw in the towel. They took what they could and began their long, lonely exile north once more, leaving behind their Happy Hunting ground. Trickery, deceit, and greed had taken a terrible toll on the Wamesits. Those who remained behind on what was left to their land faced an uphill existence. They clung to what was left of their home and dignity. Years later, a group of local settlers by name of Jonathan Bowers, Samuel Hunt, and some others got together in December 1725 and made plans to unite the local farmers into one community.

Bowers, Hunt and company decided to establish a new township made up from some of the land area of Billerica and all of the land which made up the Wamesit Reservation. They petitioned the General Court to have this land incorporated into a new town to be known as Wamesit. Under the requirements of the laws the new town had to have a town meeting house before incorporation could be granted. The residents were given three years to construct the meeting house. However, the Colonists evidently more preoccupied with clearing their farmland than getting together to build the meeting house, and when the three years time expired the house was not yet built. The General Court rejected their petition for incorporation.

Although the Colonists were now already building on the new land areas, the Wamesits must have felt great relief when the news of the General Court decision reached them. But as history has shown us, their relief was short lived. Destiny could not be held back for long. Eventually the Colonists got their act together and built their meeting house. Here in our story the facts become lost to time. When the new petition for township was presented to the General Court, the name on the petition of the new town was changed from Wamesit to Tewksbury. To this day no one has been able to find out why this came about.

On December 23rd, 1734, the General Court granted official township to the Colonists and Tewksbury was born consisting of about 19,000 acres of land from Billerica and all of the land that was known as the Wamesit Reservation. At that time there were around 60 people residing in the new town, not counting the handful of Wamesits left behind when the Tribe moved north.

And what did the Wamesits think of all of this? We shall never know. It is safe to assume they were heartbroken and in low spirits having lost the very land that the white man's government had granted them as a reservation. This was their land for many hundreds of years and now they had lost it to the powerful Colonists whom they had befriended years before. For them there was no more hope, only despair. Soon the too were forced from the land and sent north.

Now it is 1986 and the wilderness has become shopping malls, parking lots, and streets and roads lined with ranch houses and split entries. In the small patches of woods left for us to enjoy, the gray ghosts of the Wamesits still hunt, because in spirit, this is still their land, land of the Wamesit. So remember, what's in a name? Plenty! Tewksbury, the town that almost was called Wamesit, Massachusetts.

Editors note: The Name Tewksbury comes from one of the titles of the King of England. He was also the Duke of Tewkesbury.

The Colonial Government of Massachusetts, in order to ingratiate itself with the royal authority, named the new town after him, using his title. They did the same thing four years earlier, for Wilmington, which was to be called Goshen. The Earl of Wilmington was a prominent politician, and a friend of the Prince of Wales.

In neither case did the local settlers' wishes prevail. Ed.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

Article 26 was defeated at Wilmington's Annual Town Meeting on Saturday. It would have amended the zoning bylaws so as to prohibit hospitals and nursing homes in anything other than a General Business district.

The arguments in favor of the article were certainly substantive. All of us have at one time or another visited a companion at a nursing home facility. In turn, we can recognize that nursing homes are businesses which employ people, take deliveries from trucks, have parking lots, and in turn, cause some degree of traffic in the areas in which they are located. However, the sentiment that prevailed on Saturday is that if nursing homes constitute a business, then they are a special business.

The ability to care for the elderly and care for them properly, in any level nursing home facility, must have something to do with the environment they are located in. It was this concern which kept many voters from supporting Article 26. For a hospital, many might have considered the zoning change. However, a nursing home is quite different, since it is in most cases a permanent home for the patient and not a temporary bed, as in the case with a hospital dealing in emergencies.

The issue boiled down to a lot of genuine concern regarding elderly care; which is more and more a growing topic in this country. Though many sympathized with the sincere intentions of Article 26, there was a vivid picture in many peoples' minds of a nursing home situated adjacent to something like an auto dealership.

When you consider the trend in Wilmington to approve measures limiting the expansion of business, our real compassion as a town was evident when we voted down Article 26.

Tech school board critical of Supt. Wolk

by Arlene Surprenant
In an evaluation session made open under the state's Open Meeting Law, Shawsheen Tech Superintendent-Director Benjamin Wolk endured some harsh criticism from a majority of school committee members at their meeting Tuesday night.

The overall unsatisfactory rating Wolk received moved committee member Kevin Sowyrd to ask for a vote of no confidence, though he later withdrew his motion when others called it "premature."

Sowyrd, who consistently rated Wolk's performance "poor," said Wolk would "best serve the needs of the school by immediately tendering his resignation." This caused Wolk to retort that it was unfortunate that one of the newest and youngest board members is the "most critical."

Tewksbury's Richard Griffin backed Sowyrd's general view. It may be "time to consider a new source of leadership for this school," he said as he pointed out several problems he had with the superintendent's performance. He cited Wolk for failing to update the academic curriculum and failing to display a proper understanding of the financial needs of the school and member communities.

Burlington's Jack Miller, newly re-elected chairman, stressed that the evaluation process was meant as "constructive criticism" and added "most of us have been around long enough to know we all have failings."

Members rated Wolk on written evaluation sheets and covered the superintendent's personal qualities as well as his performance and responsibility.

Wolk rated high (average to above average) on appearance, integrity, moral courage, physical fitness, intelligence, and self-discipline. Conversely, he was low (below average to poor) in the delegation of authority, tact, ability to command confidence and respect, understanding school committee policies, and establishing priorities, among others.

In his defense, Wolk pointed out that the school continues to provide the "best possible education" to students. If it didn't he said, "I would have left this job long ago." He also questioned how members' comments could be legitimate considering they're not in the building on a daily basis.

"There is a message here and you have to look at the message," said Miller as he suggested Wolk take the evaluation sheets, assimilate the comments, and perhaps prepare a response for a later meeting.

Wilmington selectmen delay video game decision

by Arlene Surprenant
Though this was the second time proponents of a video game at Uncle Mickey on Route 129 came before the board, selectmen once again postponed a decision Monday night, pending further investigation.

According to store owner Mike Castellano, his taxes have "more than tripled" and in obtaining a license to place a video machine in the take-out section of his store, he only hopes to "compensate for high costs."

Vending company owner Frank Costa told the board they would abide by any restrictions members wished to place on the license. He further agreed to operate the machine only after school hours so the store wouldn't become a hang-out for children attending the Shawsheen Elementary School across the street.

"If it's going to cause problems for my customers," added Castellano, "I'm going to pull it out anyway."

In an attempt to gain input from neighbors and abutters, Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski had asked the chief of police to conduct an informal survey of the area. As a result, it was learned that 75 percent of those polled were against placement of the machine though the Shawsheen School principal had "no serious problems" with it, said Stapczynski.

Selectmen questioned whether those polled realized the restrictions which would be placed on the license and asked that those opposed be approached once again.

John Sanborn of Church Street said that, in the past, the area was "a complete hang-out" and the police were there "24 hours a day." Now that the store is under new owners and the area is kept clear, he wondered why Castellano would risk drawing in outsiders and creating potential problems once again.

Wilmington hires elementary tutors

Three elementary school tutors have been hired to improve student potential and help failing students "catch up" in certain content areas, according to Superintendent Robert Horan.

All three tutors have "substantial" classroom experience and were selected from a field of 13 candidates.

Gayles Engineering to design Shawsheen Tech roof specs

Gayles Engineering Co. received the nod from the Shawsheen Tech School Committee Tuesday night to design and write the specifications for the new roof to be funded through a five year bond issue.

A review committee comprised of Superintendent Benjamin Wolk, Business Manager Robert Brooks, and Elmer Green selected the company from among six others which submitted bids ranging from $12,000 to $50,000. Gayles Engineering came in with the lowest bid. According to committee member Anthony Mazzone, the company has done similar jobs in a number of local schools and is "well qualified."

The company will install a single ply insulated roof deck and place drains and walkways on the roof.

The cost of the roof repair, said Brooks, is "much less" than they had anticipated, though it wasn't certain how much insulation they would need or what the cost would be.

Scenes at the Wilmington Town Meeting

Wilmington fincom Chairman Mark Lutz was one of the key players at Saturday's Annual Town Meeting.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski made a donation to the Chemical People Task Force at its table outside the Wilmington Town Meeting. Anne Linehan was happy to accept.

Sean O'Beirne of Hillside Way was the sponsor of an article which would have disallowed nursing homes in a residential area. The article lost.

Former selectman Aldo Caira spoke against the article which would have eliminated nursing homes from residential areas. He said that the Tewksbury Hospital, of which he is deputy superintendent, has a waiting list of 80 people, many of whom are from the Tewksbury - Wilmington area.

Voting by paper ballots was used for the question of whether Wilmington should break away from Reading Light. Voters were in favor of the split, 380 to 22. Margaret Wagstaff is shown checking in with teller Mary Woods.

Moderator Michael Caira is firm but fair in his control of the town meeting.

Dear Larz:

I am compelled to respond to "Signs of Spring" in the April 16 issue. The middle picture did not need a "comment." Hopefully, everyone saw the pictorial humor. I only wish you would do the same thing for the next two annual elections in Tewksbury -- just to remind us that we must sort fact from fertilizer before we cast that important ballot.

Sincerely,
Cyndee Carson

Dear Larz:

Responding to a letter by Anne Linehan (April 23) where she opposes a smokers' lounge for WHS teachers is another right wing attempt to dictate morals in Wilmington.

While I agree the habit is "vile and deadly," teachers can't be expected to comply with "positive lifestyles" in the privacy of a lounge on their own time.

To be expected to live that way logically implies that they should also be required to trade in their autos for horses and buggies seeing that they are as noxious as coffin nails. Perhaps a teacher's lunch should consist of an apple and yogurt, cutting out fat and sugar; and not be seen with any literature that may be deemed inappropriate by the elite.

To quote Bertrand Russell: "The Freedom we should seek is not to suppress others, but the right to live as we choose and think as we choose where our doing so does not prevent others from doing likewise."

June 7 special election

As the Wilmington Board of Selectmen voted unanimously Monday to place an override of Prop 2 1/2 on the ballot for a special town election June 7, some board members took the school committee to task for not endorsing the whole $1.25 million renovation bond issue on Saturday's town meeting.

Jim Stewart told fellow members he felt the committee should have unanimously supported the whole package for additions at the high school instead of just the $318,000 for furnishings. It was an "embarrassment," he said, that the committee didn't come in with a favorable vote on the total $1.25 million figure.

Since the main event of the extra funds is to provide "the best possible high school" and the funds are 65 percent reimbursable, he added, governing boards should be in agreement if they hope to win voter approval.

Rocco DePasquale, too, expressed anger at the lack of vocal support. He pointed out that his board and the Town Manager were "taken to task" by the Finance Committee for increases in the town budget even though the increases they sought were less than those in the school department budget, a budget approved by fincom down to the last line item.

In a telephone interview Monday night, school committee Chairman Tony Accardi expressed surprise that some selectmen expected his committee to unanimously endorse the bond.

He explained that Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski sent word through PBC chairman Bernie LaVita that his committee "didn't have to vote on anything at all." Members, however, felt they could vote on additional furnishings but agreed they were not in a position to support extra funds "for more or less maintenance items."

"I really believe this has been rushed; that's part of the confusion surrounding this," Accardi went on. As a taxpayer, he added, he personally doesn't support the override vote. He stressed that the Permanent Building Committee worked "very hard" to stay within the original $6.5 million bond and PBC members assured the school committee the building would be almost complete without the additions.

"What," he asked, "are we supporting the override for?"

Voters will go to the polls set up at the Town Hall and the Wildwood School on June 7 to express their approval or disapproval of the override.

Seek to clarify Tech budget

Shawsheen Tech Business Manager Robert Brooks Tuesday night called the budget confusion and charges of "double dipping" at Saturday's town meeting "a misunderstanding on both sides."

"It's unfortunate that it happened that way," said Brooks as he supported committeeman Kevin Sowyrda's attempt to amend the Tech budget in the afternoon.

Sowyrda said the Tech's executive secretary will contact Wilmington Town Hall for a tape of town meeting to be turned over to fiscal consultant Charles Lyons. Part of the confusion arose because Lyons couldn't be present at town meeting due to a death in the family. Now Lyons will go over the action at that meeting in an attempt to clear up the "misunderstanding."

Early Morel

Morels, one of the world's finest mushrooms, appear in this part of the country in May. This morel was photographed on April 29, at the Bertwell farm in Wilmington.

All by itself, it would not provide much of a dinner, but with a dozen others the taste will never be forgotten.

Housing authority receives $212k

The Wilmington Housing Authority has received an additional $212,500 state grant for modernization of the elderly units at Deming Way, according to Executive Director Lillian Buckley. The grant is the second one awarded to upgrade the present units. The original grant totaled $138,000.

Once members started seeing what needed to be done, they realized they would have to enlarge the scope of the work, said Buckley.

Besides the elimination of termite discovered in some of the units, members also have to decide whether to replace all underground heating pipes, Buckley added.

The housing authority is now in the second phase of the modernization project.

"When Poison Ivy Comes A Creepin'"

By Donald Lyman, Jr., R.Ph.

It's spring, and that means a lot of us will be out and about, working around the yard gardening, cleaning up the winter's debris. It also means a lot of us will be coming into contact with poison ivy.

Poison ivy is common throughout Massachusetts and can be readily identified by its characteristic pointed leaves arranged in clusters of three per stalk. Poison ivy often grows as a vine, climbing tree trunks, walls, and fences. The highest incidence of skin rash due to poison ivy occurs in the spring and summer when the leaves of the plant are tender and easily bruised. When bruised, the leaves release urushiol, the chemical in the poison ivy plant which causes skin irritation.

Although touching the poison ivy plant is the most common way people get the rash, it certainly isn't the only way. Smoke from burning poison ivy, contact with contaminated clothing, or even petting a dog whose fur is contaminated can cause a reaction.

The rash itself is an allergic reaction and can appear as little as 12 hours after contact with the plant. The arms, legs, face, and neck are the most common sites affected because these are usually unprotected by clothing. The irritation is characterized by itching, burning lesions. Fluid may frequently ooze from the lesions, but, contrary to popular belief this fluid is not contagious. Poison ivy cannot spread from person to person or from one part of the body to another. The rash may break out on different areas of the body at different times, however, which can cause the appearance of "spreading."

Severe cases of poison ivy may require a visit to the doctor's office. Physicians will sometimes prescribe anti-inflammatory steroids for especially bad cases. Minor cases can usually be treated without a trip to the doctor's. Keeping the affected areas clean and free from infection, and the relief of itching and inflammation are the main goals in treating poison ivy.

Astringents, such as aluminum acetate (Domeboro), help stop oozing of lesions, reduce inflammation, and may promote healing. Some astringents also act as antiseptics. Antihistamines, such as Benadryl, may provide some relief from itching. Hydrocortisone creams can help to reduce inflammation, and old standby calamine lotion have a soothing, cooling effect on the rash.

Prevention is the best treatment, however. Learn to recognize the poison ivy plant and avoid it whenever possible. Wear gloves or other protective clothing when working or gardening in areas where poison ivy occurs. And don't hesitate to consult your doctor or pharmacist regarding treatment, or if you're not sure the rash you're dealing with is poison ivy.

May 9 will mark the special day of Anne Dougherty of Chandler Street, Tewksbury and Mitchell Folta of Revere Road.

Wilmington postal employee Sid Kaizer of Cottage Street, Wilmington will be a year wiser on May 10 as will BeeDee and Tracy DeLucia of Oliver Street, Tewksbury.

John O'Malley communicates by wave mail

John O'Malley of Dickson Avenue, Tewksbury is a man with an extraordinary tale to tell. It is of an ocean voyage, in which the craft was motivated by "wave power."

John is a steamship clerk, on the Moran Terminal in Charlestown. That terminal, which faces on the Mystic River, is upstream from the Tobin Bridge, the bridge which joins Everett and Charlestown.

For several years John has been having fun, during the noon hour, by writing letters, putting them into fruit bottles, and then throwing the bottles into the Mystic.

He has never heard of anyone ever finding one of those bottles. That's not surprising.

But, a few days ago, John received a letter from Ireland. A park department employee, who was cleaning Iverson Beach, in County Donegal, had found one of the bottles.

That bottle had had an extra ordinary journey. Many people, when out on the Atlantic Ocean, have thrown bottle messages into the ocean. A few of those have been found on various European beaches. It was the Gulf stream which had carried the bottle to its destination.

But the Mystic River is not a part of the Gulf Stream. Further, from time to time, there are eddies from the Labrador Current which work their way into Massachusetts Bay, and flow, it can be said, in the "opposite" direction.

The message from John O'Malley would have to "work" its way out of Boston Harbor. That could take several weeks.

There would be several or more ebb tides, and an equal number of flood tides, during that time period. Any of those tides could have put John O'Malley's bottle under a pier somewhere, or into some other spot where it never could have been found.

But the bottle, it is evident, did reach the Atlantic, which outside Boston is known as Massachusetts Bay. It did also flow easterly or southeasterly, to pass out beyond Cape Cod. Cape Cod is 50 miles from Boston Lightship.

Outside Cape Cod it would have gone, possibly, southeasterly, on tidal currents. It could have, possibly, gone southerly, and past Nantucket Shoals.

In either case it would have had to go far enough to the south to reach a latitude in which the Gulf Stream exists. Then the voyage to Europe could begin.

It was a "happstance" voyage at best for that bottle, but John O'Malley has delivered his message, and he did it by Wave Power.

Running for Fitness at Health Center

Scott Carpenter graduates

C. Scott Carpenter of Wilmington, was recently graduated, with high honors, from Calhoun School of Engineering, M.E.B.A. of Easton, Maryland.

Carpenter, who received his degree in Marine Engineering, was also commissioned an Ensign in the United States Navy (Reserve). A graduate of Wilmington High School, he is the son of Robert and Virginia Carpenter of Wilmington.

The Carpenter family traveled to Maryland for the ceremonies which were held March 24. Scott will be traveling to Texas on his first marine assignment.

Have you been putting off starting that exercise program you've often thought about? Are you trying to lose the weight you gained this winter? Or are you interested in fitness?

The Community Health Education Department of the Regional Health Center in Wilmington will conduct an eight-week "Running for Fitness" program which will be held on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 5 to 6 beginning May 5. The program is designed for men and women who have just begun or would like to begin a running program, but would like to be guided through a medically-sound program.

The program's goal is to promote cardiovascular fitness by increasing the intensity of aerobic exercise at a safe and proper rate. Participants will also be instructed relative to proper warm-up and cool-down procedures, proper running techniques, as well as care and prevention of running injuries.

Classes will be conducted on the Lifecourse, an exercise and fitness trail which is located on the ground of the Regional Health Center.

To provide additional information to avid runners, beginners or those interested in the above program, the Community Health Education Department will conduct a Running and Fitness Seminar on Wednesday, April 30 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The program will discuss the health benefits of regular exercise, the importance of proper running and the care and prevention of common running injuries. While the seminar will be geared for "Running for Fitness" participants, all interested runners are encouraged to attend. Handouts will be available.

Please contact the Community Health Education Department at 657-3910, extension 567 to register for either program.

The Regional Health Center in Wilmington is a division of Choate-Symmes Health Services.

Blood pressure control program at health center

"Design Your Lifestyle to Control Your Blood Pressure" will be the theme of a two-part program in recognition of National High Blood Pressure Month at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington.

The year's national theme, "Treat Yourself to Life," focuses on new ways to take control -- decreasing weight, limiting fat and salt consumption, increasing exercise and managing stress. These methods emphasize non-drug approaches to supplement or replace drugs in treating high or bordering blood pressure.

Part one of the program will be held on Monday, May 5. Suetta M.B. Tenney, M.D., a primary care internist and Thomas Thrall, M.D., internist and behavioral medicine specialist, will discuss "Lifestyles to Keep Your Blood Pressure Down."

This first session will explain methods of comprehensive treatment for high blood pressure. These methods integrate lifestyle changes with medication. Specific techniques will be demonstrated and exercise prescriptions will be addressed.

The second portion of this program will highlight the role nutrition plays in controlling high blood pressure. On Monday, May 12, Elvira Q. Johnson, R.D., M.S., nutrition services coordinator will present "Lowering Fat, Salt and Calories to Lower Your Blood Pressure." Her presentation will cover the latest research in the field and will also include recipes for low-fat, and low-sodium foods. The program will conclude with a question and answer period.

Both programs will begin at 7 p.m. following a blood pressure screening with an EMT/health educator. The screening/ counseling requires an appointment by calling 657-3910, ext. 567. The program fee is $5.00 for each or $7.00 for both. (Couples price is $10 for both programs). Pre-registration is required for the programs also.

Some of the top talent in the school will perform in "Coming of Age," a musical about the trauma of being 13 years old.

Under the direction of music instructor Joseph Plassmann, the show will be held May 8 in the school cafeteria. It will incorporate all departments at the school, said Plassmann.

Those teachers involved in pulling the ambitions undertaking together are Mrs. Larrabee (art), Mrs. Foresteire (reading), Mr. Finer (industrial arts), Mr. Rolinson (industrial arts), and Mrs. Gioardano (home economics).

The public is invited to attend. There will be a $1.00 admission fee.

For a while, it appeared that the annual Sports Night between the West and North Intermediate Schools would not be held this year due to renovation work at the high school.

However, the evening of friendly competition will go on as scheduled starting at 7 p.m. Monday, May 5 at the Reading High School girls' gym in Reading.

Tickets may be obtained at either the West or North, or at the door on the night of the evening.

Rehearsals are underway for a two hour musical review to be held at the North Intermediate May 29 and 30.

The show, under the direction of music teacher Sarah Fachada, will highlight excerpts from South Pacific, Annie Get Your Gun, and Carousel.

Be sure and mark your calendars now for the big day. Admission will be charged.

Shawsheen Elementary School

A fifth and sixth grade Science Fair will be held at the school May 8 right after the lunch hour until 3 p.m. and May 9 from 9 to 11 a.m. All parents are welcome to go and view the exhibits.

Ice cream lovers are expected to eat their fill at a PAC sponsored ice cream smorgasbord to be held at the Shawsheen School on May 9 from 6 to 8 p.m. Due to an overwhelming response, tickets are no longer available.

As a guideline, families with last names beginning with the letters A to F are asked to arrive between 6 and 6:30 p.m.; those beginning with G to M between 6:30 and 7 p.m. and those starting with N to Z between 7 to 7:30 p.m.

NOTE: Any administrators, teachers, parents, or PAC members of district schools who wish to have events or notices included in this column should forward the information to the Town Crier office by Monday afternoons, in care of Arlene Surprenant. This column will run weekly, space permitting.

Wilmington Women's Club wins state awards

Several members of the Wilmington Women's Club attended Awards Day at the State Club Institute held recently in Newton to see the club honored with winners.

The club's Press Book submitted by Press Correspondent Helen Noonan placed first of all clubs in the Eighth District. Judging was based on quality of releases, their diversity as well as neatness in presentation. The notebook will go on to be judged with the winners of all other districts at the Annual Convention in North Falmouth.

Entering the original writing contest for the first time, Anne Buzzell won second place of all entries with her poem "Women of the World Unite: You Have Nothing to Lose but a Pain." This poem was inspired by a futile attempt by the author to buy a pair of overshoes, which are available only for men and children. The poem goes as follows:

*What happened to the overshoe?
The knee-high boot will never do*

*If I've a vote, it's not to tote
My shoes, along with hat and coat,
To concert hall, or shopping mall,
Or when I pay a social call.*

*What fatal lure of haute couture
Makes women feel they must endure
Designer's whim (most likely him)
That guarantees a sweaty limb?*

*And what is more, the cursed bore
Can make one's whole darn leg sore.
It makes no sense. We must seem dense
To buy such things at great expense.*

*Let's show our might. It's time to fight.
To boycott boots we must UNITE!*

Wildcats, Redmen swing into spring

Lindsey lashes

Tewksbury High School senior Dave Lindsey lashes a pitch that helped get the Redmen back on the winning track with a 2-1 win over previously unbeaten Methuen Monday afternoon at Hazel Field. The Redmen had dropped three straight prior to the victory.

Eric takes his lead

Wilmington High School junior Eric Braciska gets a walking lead off thirdbase in recent Merrimack Valley Conference action. Braciska and the Wildcats failed to mount much of an attack in losing 7-0 to Lawrence in conference action Monday afternoon.

Shelley set

Wilmington co-captain Ed Shelley gets set to rip a pitch in action Monday afternoon. Shelley and the Wildcats dropped a 7-0 decision to Lawrence.

Danner fires

Pitcher Tracey Danner has helped spark the Tewksbury girls softball team to a 3-2 record so far this season.

Winning RBI

Jay Rideout drove home the winning run Monday for the Redmen with a fielder's choice. Rideout and his mates hope to begin a winning streak this week.

Redmen muster three fifths

The Tewksbury boys' varsity track and field team travelled to the annual State Coache's Relays this past Saturday, walking away with three fifth place finishes.

The Redmen will have hosted Lawrence Catholic this past Monday, and will take three or four individuals to the freshman-sophomore meet at Wilmington this coming Saturday.

On Monday, May 5, Tewksbury will host Haverhill High School in a non-conference meet at 3:30 p.m. On May 7, the Redmen will travel to MVC League power and defending State Champion, Chelmsford for a 3:30 p.m. meet.

Relays Class B

On a cool and misty Saturday, the Redmen competed in the State Coache's Relays - Class B, held at Reading High School. Tewksbury could only muster three fifth place finishes, two of which were better than expected performances.

Sophomores Jeff Stone and Billy

Donahue each cleared 9'6" to go along with senior Scott Weisensee's 8'0" clearance to give the Redmen one of their places, while the distance medley team of Tim McCaffery, Mike Goodine, Dave Kelleher, and Robbie Busch ran extremely well to give the Tewksbury crew another good fifth place finish.

The triple jump threesome of Co-captains Buddy MacAllister, Mark Christoffels, and senior teammate Mike Goodine, jumped well enough to give the Redmen a place.

Two of Tewksbury's other relay teams, the 4 x 110 meters and the 4 x 200 meters would have placed very well except for

Wilmington boys blister Tewksbury, 2-0

Boys under 16

The boys turned in a strong performance against Tewksbury, but still went down to defeat, 2-0.

Very strong games were turned in by Adam Pagliarulo, Danielle Fay, Steven Cutone and Doug Michaud. Mike Cornell, in his first game of the year, played very well at left wing and had a couple of good scoring opportunities.

Tewksbury scored twice in the first half, but Wilmington had some great chances, only to be repelled by the Tewksbury goalie and the goal post and cross bar.

Girls under 14

The girls kept their unbeaten, unscored upon streak alive with a 2-0 win over Wakefield III.

The girls played a very strong game with Eilen DeMarco scoring the first goal from about 25 yards out at the 15 minute mark of the first half.

Strong defensive play was turned in by the team for the remainder of the game with many scoring opportunities.

The second goal was scored by Andrea Ducey on a deflection on a perfect corner kick by Erin McKenna. Good games were turned in by Ann Marie Barletta, Suzy Walsh and Andrea DiLeo.

Boys under 14 II

The boys opened their spring season with an impressive win over Reading United II, 2-1.

In their second week of play against Melrose, Wilmington won again with a score of 2-0. In the third game of the season, the boys suffered their first loss by a score of 3-1 to Billerica.

Throughout most of the game Wilmington had the territorial advantage, but just couldn't finish off their scoring opportunities. A strong game was played by Kevin DiGiovanni on right wing, and the only score was by Mike Bote.

Great defensive plays were made by Kevin Meeker and Brian Moore. Corey Masse and Jason Oliver combined for some good passing and scoring attempts.

Girls under 12

The girls team lost a close game to the Wakefield II team. The larger Wakefield team took a quick 2-0 lead early in the first half, but were kept scoreless the rest of the way by the swarming Wilmington defense.

The Wilmington girls also had several good scoring opportunities in the first half, particularly one shot which was shrewdly picked by the Wakefield goalkeeper beyond their goal line.

To their credit, the Wilmington girls took charge in the second half by scoring a goal and putting heavy pressure on the Wakefield goal, especially in the closing minutes of the game. They had many shots on goal, but were unable to score the tying and winning goals.

Jessica White scored the lone Wilmington goal and played well at halfback, as did Joy Michaud and Julie Robinson at that position.

Tobey Kenney played her usual standout game at fullback and almost scored on two long defensive kicks. Kerry Spinale also turned in a fine performance at forward.

Boys under 12 I

The team opened the season with a convincing 3-0 victory over a solid Billerica squad.

Greg Maiella scored an unassisted goal and Brent Carbone headed in a corner kick by David Dussault. The other goal was scored on a 35 yard blast by fullback Chris DeFrancesco.

Standout performances were contributed by halfbacks John Lynch and John Martins. David Oatis, Bobby Deislinger, Derrick Stokes and Tom Killilea also played well in their fullback positions to enable Eric Flynn to register a well-deserved shoutout.

Forwards Joey Catanzano and Tom Zaya also made major contributions to the victory.

The boys had another strong victory in their second game, as they beat Bedford by a score of 5-0.

John Lynch assumed his new forward responsibilities by scoring three goals. Derrick Stokes also scored a nice goal and Tom Killilea slammed a penalty shot into the corner of the net.

Christian Armata, Joey Catanzano, Brian Wallace and Gerard Forgett played strong games at forward. Halfbacks David Dussault, Jimmy DeMarco and Tim Zaya played outstanding games in their positions.

John Martins earned a shutout in goal by making some nice saves throughout the game.

Boys under 12 II

On Saturday the boys lost a hard fought game to Woburn. Reduced to 11 players due to injuries and vacations, the team played their hearts out from start to finish.

Unfortunately, the fresh legs of Woburn eventually wore down the game, but tired Wilmington squad.

The outstanding midfield play of Tom Aprile, Shawn DeMaggio, Mike Peterson and Matt Lewis kept much of the Woburn attack off goalies Steve Burns, Mike King and Dave Morgardo.

Thanks to a fine crossing pass from Frankie Barletta, Mark Zambarnardi scored Wilmington's only goal in the 4-1 loss.

Girls under 10

Last week the team travelled to North Reading, where they ran into a very strong team. No. Reading scored first at the midway point of the first half. They scored again about 10 minutes later to end the half ahead, 2-0.

During the half Wilmington had many scoring opportunities from forwards Nancy Pote, Shannon Jepson and Leanne Harris.

Halfbacks Lisa DiPerri and Jackie Hayden also provided some great offensive help. Wilmington would not give up. At the 17 minute mark Shannon Jepson fed Jaime Forgett for a great goal.

The offense kept working, but missed on some great opportunities. Just before the end of the game, No. Reading pushed across their fourth goal to end the scoring at 4-1.

Playing great fullback for Wilmington were Anne Deislinger, Amy Hermann and Megan McCarthy.

Wilmington went back into the win column this past week when they played Billerica at home, slipping and sliding through the mud at the Shawsheen field.

Nancy Pote scored Wilmington's first goal unassisted at the 12 minute mark of the first half when she intercepted a pass and broke in on goal.

Meanwhile, Karen DeFrancesco in goal and fullbacks Laura DeMarco, Erin Gilhooly, Denise Langone and Lynnette Sbrano were preventing Billerica from any chances at notching a score.

The forwards and halfbacks, led by Lori Laquidara and Amanda Zaya, kept constant pressure on Billerica through the second half, resulting in a goal by Jill Murphy with a great assist to Lisa DiPerri.

Nancy Pote and Mary Armata were superb as goalkeepers in the second half to complete the 2-0 win. This was a perfect team effort.

Boys under 10

Despite the muddy field conditions at the Shawsheen field, the boys played a superb game against a powerful Chelmsford team.

Chelmsford came into the game with a two win, no loss record, yet was unable to score against a stingy Wilmington defense. The final score of 0-0 was fitting, as both teams played soccer the way the game was meant to be played.

While each team had a few good scoring chances, the fullback unit of Craig Metcalfe, Michael Giordano, Brian Surran and Andrew Armata consistently blunted the Chelmsford attack.

Every player on the Wilmington team played well. Particularly strong play came from Mark Wallace, Eric Shaffer, David Major and Matthew Calandrello.

Once again the superb goaltending of Michael Moore kept Wilmington in the game.

With this scoreless tie, Wilmington picks up its' second point in league play in the tough Division Two. Each of the players is showing steady improvement against difficult competition.

Boys under 10 II

The Wilmington II boys under 10 team, lost a real nailbiter (2-1) to Winchester last Saturday.

Winchester had blown away its' previous two opponents by scores of 6-0 and 6-0, and might just be the toughest team in the division.

Wilmington scored first, Sean O'Malley taking a breakaway pass from Chris Gil and beating Winchester's goalie cleanly.

This was the first goal scored against Winchester this year. Wilmington dominated for the first 20 minutes with outstanding play.

At the end of the first half it was 1-1, and Winchester was playing very well and keeping the pressure on. Finally, Winchester broke through a tough but tired defense and goalie Rich Barden, who looked marvelous the entire game.

Wilmington played its' best game so far and is getting better and better with each game.

Halfback David Maglio played brilliantly. All the players contributed to this strong team effort. Shawn Barden has been a very strong fullback and halfback. Steve Shaw and Mike Cairra also put in very good efforts at halfback and forward respectively. Next week the team will play at Billerica.

Dart league playoffs underway

The North Suburban Dart League playoffs got underway recently with the start of the quarterfinals. To date there has been plenty of action and the competition has been grueling.

The games were expected to be close, and they couldn't have been any closer nor more exciting. There were six teams from both divisions competing.

After some fierce battles in the first two rounds of competition, there are only four teams remaining, two from each division.

After the division finals scheduled to be held this week, there will be only two teams left to do battle for the right to be called number one.

There are no favorites. Each team is capable of going on to become league champions. Rocco's, of Wilmington, the defending champs, are still very much in the picture, and they are trying to become the first team ever to repeat two years in a row as champions. They have a pretty good chance of doing just that, but it will be no easy task.

The type of competition coming up is what brings out the very best in these players, and anyone watching the upcoming games will not be disappointed.

TMHS girls stage exciting performance

Last Saturday the Tewksbury High School girls' track team traveled to Reading to participate in the State Coaches Relays. As is always the case when this team competes, there were several exciting performances, some near misses and some solid achievements.

In the near miss category was the shuttle hurdle team that opened the meet with fine runs by Amy DiGiorgio, Tricia Censullo, Kristin Conley and Claire Tremblay. Their time (1:11.5) was the best Tewksbury has recorded in this event for several years, but the girls had to settle for seventh place, less than a tenth of a second away from a place.

A solid achievement was recorded by the distance medley team. Kerry Silk led off with a very smart 880 in which she stayed with the pack until the last 150 yards and then sprinted away from one and all to take the baton to the line at 2:27.

Chris Blake then ran a powerful 440 (64 seconds) and Peggy Forsyth strode to the best three-quarter mile time a Tewksbury runner has ever chalked up at the relays (4:09).

Krissie Connor finished off the fine efforts with a 5:48 mile.

The team captured third place and became the only group from Tewksbury to return home with medals.

Out on the javelin field, the team of Renee Juchnevics, Sandy Keon and Sonia Dickson combined their throws to record a very fine 228'9" total and earn fourth place ribbons.

A couple of other TMHS relay teams ran very well but were just short of placings in this high calibre meet. Jill Hallisey, Renee Juchnevics, Lisa Thayer and Justine Short ran good times in the 4 x 220.

Chris Blake, Tricia Censullo, Renee Juchnevics and Kerry Silk ran a very good time in the sprint medley relay. And Paula Tordde, Kris Conley, Chrissy Frotten and Sue McLaughlin turned in praiseworthy efforts in the two mile relay.

This Saturday several of the freshmen and sophomores on the team will go to Wilmington to compete in the Northern Area

Next week, the entire team gets back into action, as TMHS hosts Haverhill on Monday and then travels to Chelmsford Wednesday.

The A's defeated the Twins in extra innings in an outstanding pitchers' dual, with Judy O'Conner on the mound for the A's and Nat McMann's going for the Twins. Steven Burns also chipped in with a strong relief effort.

Key hits for the A's were provided by Joey Catanzano, Robbie Baronowski and Judy O'Conner.

Bobby Dicey and Jimmy DeMarco made several outstanding defensive plays for the Twins in a losing effort.

Redmen snap losing streak

Tewksbury snapped a three game MVC baseball skid Monday afternoon with a solid 2-1 win over Methuen at Hazel Field.

Methuen entered the game at 3-0 after blowing out Andover last week, but senior pitcher Mike McLaughlin shutdown the Rangers on two hits, fanning four and walking only one batter.

The win was Mike's first of the season to go along with a pair of saves.

Jay Rideout plated the winning run for the Redmen with a fielder's choice.

McLaughlin had the other TMHS RBI, while Greg Parke was a key for the home squad with a double and a stolen base before scoring the winning run.

Parke was also a star defensively for coach Bob Ware's team, playing a flawless firstbase while digging several low throws out of the dirt.

After a quick 4-0 start, the Redmen dropped three decisions last week to Dracut, 3-0; Lawrence, 4-2; and Lowell 10-1. Dracut's contest was rain soaked, with all the runs coming in the fourth inning on a tremendous blast by Dan Parent for a triple.

Dracut's starter and winner Steve Talbot pitched a two-hitter, with the Redmen hitting him very hard, but directly at people.

Defensively, Jay Rideout played outstanding at firstbase for Tewksbury, with the only hits going to Jeff Smith (SS) and Greg Parke (P-LF).

Wednesday's game was a see-saw battle, with Lawrence scoring the winning run scoring in the sixth inning.

Starter and losing pitcher Ron Mueller threw very well for the Redmen, but Lawrence was a little too strong. Pat Brooks played outstanding defense at 2B, handling 12 chances without an error and contributing a long double. SS Jeff Smith continued his hitting streak (six) with a sharp single and played well defensively. Again the Redmen hit the ball well, but at people.

Friday's game was played at Lowell, with Tewksbury getting a quick 1-0 led by captain (3B-P) Mike McLaughlin who singled, moved to second on a fielder's choice and came home on a sharp single by Chris Mader (14 RBI's).

The TMHS lead was shortlived, with the Lowell bats hitting two home runs in the bottom of the fourth inning and putting the game out of reach by the sixth inning.

Defensively for the Redmen, Mader and McLaughlin played well.

This week's contest sees Greater Lawrence at Tewksbury Wednesday; the Redmen at Haverhill Friday and at Wilmington Monday.

Town Meeting passes $26m budget

by Arlene Surprenant

Approximately 400 voters approved a $26,631,388 budget for fiscal 1987 at Wilmington's annual town meeting Saturday amid some heated discussion and repeated attempts to amend various line items.

The final figure, according to members of the Finance Committee, is $144,247 over the levy limit and takes into consideration 23 percent recovery from revenue sharing losses from the state.

An anticipated 100 percent reimbursement in state aid, to make up for the loss of federal revenue sharing, created a stand-off between Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski and the Wilmington Board of Selectmen on the one hand and finance committee members on the other throughout the afternoon.

While Stapczynski continually sought to reinstate funds originally deleted by the fincom, largely to cover salaries and expenses for various town employees and department heads, voters, for the most part, sided with committee members. They seemed to agree with the philosophy of chairman Mark Lutz and his committee that if the recommendation was "worthwhile," it could come up for consideration at June's special town meeting once the state funds were assured.

Voters did, however, go along with several amended items.

- These included:
- a $715 increase for the full time planning coordinator
  - an additional $1,000 for expenses incurred by the Board of Health
  - $25,000 for the senior citizen center renovation, an increase of $20,000 over fincom's recommendation
  - $39,260 for Council on Aging expenses, $1,500 more than fincom's recommendation.
  - a $3,000 decrease in the Blue Cross-Blue Shield account
  - $5,000 for the out-of-state travel account for the police chief and juvenile officer.

Debate on this last figure led to a change by selectman Rocco DePasquale that fincom members were dictating to the town manager and trying to "destroy" the town manager form of government.

"I take this as a direct affront and insult to the town manager," DePasquale said, referring to fincom's recommendation that the account be divided, allotting the police chief $1,000 and the juvenile officer $2,000 for travel. Voters, in the end, went along with Stapczynski's request for the $5,000.

Shot down were moves to increase the dog officer's salary to $18,000 and make the position full time and to amend the Shawsheen Tech budget to bring Wilmington's portion up to $750,890.

Fred Neilson, backed by Bob Doucette and Dan Ballou and others, claimed the new dog officer is "conscientious" and "working full time hours" for part time pay. Though both DePasquale and Jim Stewart agreed the need was there, they pointed out the position may have to be readvertised and it would be better to fund a full time position in next year's budget.

Shawsheen Tech school committee Kevin Sowyrda lobbied for an increase in the school's budget, saying fincom's recommendation increases Wilmington's assessment by seven percent yet allows the operating budget to increase by less than one percent, a move which "will help destroy programs at Shawsheen Tech."

"Two hundred and seventy-three Wilmington youngsters seek and deserve your support today," he added in an impassioned plea.

Sowyrda was backed by Mr. McDermott, a member of the school's administrative staff, who claimed the Tech was being penalized for being efficient. Over the years, he added, the Tech budget has decreased from $6.9 million in 1981 to $6.8 million in 1986 and survived some "tight fiscal constraints."

Stapczynski told proponents of the amendment that the town can't afford a 20 percent increase for "any one budget." He also contended that part of the debt service for the town's share of a bond issue to repair the school's roof and purchase shop equipment was included in the budget figure and this was "double dipping." Voters agreed and approved fincom's recommendation of $669,000.

In an unprecedented move, voters unanimously approved the entire $10,147,299 school department budget with nary a comment. All items in the budget, including 72 percent allotted for salaries and the rest in non-salary accounts, were recommended by the fincom.

All capital expenditures for both the town and school department, as outlined in articles six and seven, were approved with little discussion prior to the 6:30 p.m. supper break.

Voters agreed to a $120,000 topographical mapping project to aid town departments in decisions relating to the layout of land in Wilmington. They also agreed to an amended figure of $14,069 for a utility van for the public buildings department and the replacement of five police cruisers and other vehicles in other departments.

Bernie LaVita, chairman of the Permanent Building Committee, presented the article requesting an additional $1.25 million for high school renovations.

Town Meeting articles

A second plan was submitted on April 22, which would develop the property as six R60 houselots.

Aldo Cairia said that many other towns have nursing homes in residential areas. Also, he said, Tewksbury Hospital has a list of 80 names of local people waiting to get into the hospital. He was against the article.

Al Cuoco said the article would introduce an element of negotiation into the process of locating a nursing home. A proponent would have to go before town meeting to rezone land to General Business.

Betty Spahl asked if that would be "spot zoning."

Planning Board Chairman Tony Gentile said it would not.

The article did not pass. The vote was 133 in favor, 179 opposed.

Three articles were then approved, each one unanimously.

Article 19 placed car dealerships in a High Density Business category. Thus any proposal for a dealership must go before a town meeting.

Article 13 provided $45,824 for Wilmington's share of the cost of roof repairs at Shawsheen Tech.

Article 24 granted $4500 to the Wilmington Council on the Arts.

Article 20 was brought by the selectmen to settle a case which had remained in process for several years. Former Chief of Police Paul Lynch had sought to have his pension paid directly by the town, thus freeing up the money he had contributed to the county pension fund. The key to the matter was if he had been employed by the town prior to July 1, 1939.

Town Counsel Alan Altman recommended that the town settle the case by voting to pay Lynch $21,250. Altman said that due to a recent case in which the Supreme Judicial Court decided that employment could be as tenuous as a half hour, he was not sure he could win the case. If the town were to lose, he said, it could end up costing the town hundreds of thousands of dollars, Altman said. The town meeting approved the article.

Article 15 was a proposal to have the town buy nine acres of land owned by the Boston and Maine Railroad, on Salem Street at the Wildcat tracks. The article lost, 108 to 120.

The Fourth of July Committee received a vote of confidence with Article 16, a proposal to fund an addition to the Fourth of July Headquarters. Jack Cushing said that the maximum cost would be $24,000 but that donations would cover many of the costs. All labor would be donated, he said, and some of the materials.

The purpose of the addition, Cushing said, was to make the building fully accessible for handicapped persons.

The article passed easily.

Article 12 asked for $1.25 million for additional renovations for the high school.

Bernie LaVita read a list of the work to be included, saying that 65 percent of the money would be reimbursed by the state.

The selectmen backed the article unanimously, but an endorsement by Anthony Accardi, chairman of the Wilmington School Committee, left people scratching their heads. Accardi reported that the school committee voted unanimously to support $318,000 worth of the article, representing educational furnishings and equipment. The rest of the money was for items which the school committee did not have to approve.

School committeeman Mitchell Spirits said that the individual members of the committee were supporting the whole package. He called it a golden opportunity to have the 65 percent reimbursement.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said that the work proposed was over and above the work voted last year.

The article passed, 182 to 4.

Dance class blooming.

There is a good number of seniors in the dance class. The teacher will be teaching ballroom dancing the first half hour and line dancing the last half hour every Friday afternoon starting at 1:00. Often we are invited to attend weddings or parties. It is embarrassing if we are expected to take part in the dances when we cannot dance. It is to your advantage to join the class. The cost of the class is $1.50. As the class increases the cost will be reduced to $1.00.

May social

The Council on Aging May therapeutic social will be a bus ride to King's Grant Restaurant in Danvers May 21. Dinner will be served at noon. The pay is $14,000 a year. Call 481-8700 if interested.

Wilmington Police News

Explores foils criminal

Saturday, April 18, at 0130 a 31-year-old Lowell man was arrested and charged with two counts of breaking and entering in the nighttime.

The arrest was made with the help of a member of the Wilmington Police Explorers. Russell J. Plumer holds the position of chief in the Police Explorers. Three members of his family are also involved in police work, as auxiliary officers for the Wilmington department.

Mr. Plumer observed the break and entry at Wilmington's Hess Station when the perpetrator drove to the plaza. Plumer obtained the necessary information and reported the incident to his uncle who called it in. Upon arrival of police officers, the arrest was made.

The police Explorers Program has two purposes. The first is to develop a good rapport between the police and the young people of Wilmington. The second is to allow individuals considering a law enforcement career an opportunity to see what law enforcement is all about.

Once again -- Wilmington officers would like to thank Mr. Plumer for his assistance.

Arrests

At 1 a.m. Thursday, Officer Jim Peterson arrested Kenneth Betten-court, 19 of Patton Road, Billerica, charging him with operating a motor vehicle without a license, attaching plates and driving an un-registered, uninsured vehicle. He was bailed for a Thursday appearance in Woburn Court.

Saturday afternoon a Woburn man was arrested by Insp. Mike McKenna and Off. Jim Peterson after a short but intense investigation of an assault on a local girl which occurred shortly after noon. The suspect, Steven McNulty, 20, of Third Street, Woburn was charged with attempted kidnapping and assault and battery. The suspect was arrested in Woburn with the assistance of Woburn detectives.

The arrest stemmed from an incident on Main Street near McNamara's Tire Co. when the suspect allegedly followed and then grabbed a juvenile female who was walking home from the plaza. Monday in Woburn Court McNulty's case was continued to May 29 for a conference.

Officers Hancock and Richter arrested Brendon Kelly of Woburn Street early Saturday at the state police barracks in Andover by virtue of a default warrant for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol.

Sunday evening three local youths were arrested by Officer Chris Neville after an investigation of a break-in of a house on Burnap Street. Arrested was Rene Madore, 18 of 49 Burnap Street and two juvenile males. They were all charged with breaking and entering in the nighttime with intent to commit a felony and trespassing. They were to appear in Woburn Court Monday for arraignment.

Raising a new generation of robots

The ever-vigilant sentry

He's silent; he travels in the dark; he never sleeps; he "sees" through walls; and he spots invaders up to 150 feet away. The Denning Sentry — the first ever artificially-intelligent, mobile security robot guard works independently patrolling warehouses and other facilities protecting them from intruders, burglars, vandals, or other unauthorized visitors.

What burglar in his right mind would tangle with the 500-lb. Sentry? Bearing an uncanny resemblance to the R2-D2 robot of Star Wars fame, the robot stands four feet tall, has a body of fiberglass, a head that swivels 360 degrees, and the ability to send silent alarms to its control station as soon as it detects an intruder in its territory. The Sentry is manufactured by Denning Mobile Robotics, Inc. of Woburn, Massachusetts, a publicly-held company whose stock is traded in the over-the-counter market. According to Marketing Director George Leccese of Burlington, Massachusetts, the robot represents the wave of the future in the security field. "The Sentry is designed to work with a human partner," says Leccese, "doing tedious patrol work, thus freeing a human security guard to take on other duties which require thought and judgment."

The robot consists of several separate systems that process information and send it to a central computer. The robot "sees" using a ring of 24 ultrasonic sensors around its circumference that detect objects in its path. Heat is detected by infrared sensors, fire by smoke detectors, and motion by microwave sensors. Leccese said that the use of the different kinds of sensors helps prevent false alarms. Since humans move and have a certain body temperature, the robot won't send an alarm unless it detects both phenomena at the same time. For example, if the robot "feels" heat from a furnace with its infrared sensors, it won't set off an alarm because it didn't also detect motion, Leccese explained. The motion detectors are so sensitive that they can detect the movement of a person breathing, even if he is able to remain perfectly motionless.

The robot moves around on three wheels, separately-powered by a synchronous steer-and-drive mechanism, so that when it changes direction, the body stays facing the same way, only the head and wheels turn. In navigating, the robot relies on a map of the facility programmed into its computer memory. In addition, the Sentry can avoid random objects plac-

Retired Men's Club

There is life after the Internal Revenue Service! Members and guests of the Retired Men's Club of Wakefield were treated to an interesting and reassuring presentation concerning the inner workings of the Massachusetts Internal Revenue Service. Harry Durning, director of communications for the state of Massachusetts, gave a very positive image of the Massachusetts IRS.

The agency is very proud of its accomplishments during the past five years. During this period they have operated with a conviction to treat taxpayers fairly, firmly and honestly. Tax forms have been simplified; preparation of tax returns has been added as a service of the department; there has been a marked improvement in the time it takes to make refunds of overpayments. The IRS of this state is responsible for managing 22 taxes and 44 bureaus in the state. Mr. Durning rejects the term "Taxachusetts", pointing out that Massachusetts now ranks 40th among the 50 states in terms of state tax responsibilities; there has been a cut of $350,000,000 during the last five years. The success of the amnesty period has been one of the great success stories of the present administration and has been copied in other states and examined for possible use on the national level.

The following guests of the club were recognized: Donald MacKay and John H. Tyler of Lynnfield, Larry Moore of Stoneham, Stephan Pappas of Burlington and Arthur W. Rogers of Woburn. The club welcomed three new members: Al Hemenway of Melrose and Robert L. Burnett and Irving J. Zack of Wakefield. Door prizes were won by Arthur Snow and Allston Farnsworth. The program part of the meeting had an attendance of 276 men.

The members paid tribute to three members who have passed away since the last meeting: Franklin C. Hills, Francis Richey and Douglas Martin. John Griffin of Wakefield, chairman of the sick and visitation committee, read the names of those who are ill at home and in hospitals and nursing homes.

Dick Taylor of Melrose, chairman of the Bowling Club, proudly showed the championship trophy which was retained for another year by defeating the Needham Retired Men's Club team 6783 to 6554 on April 21. Leon Vogt of Wakefield had the highest individual score.

Brad Waterman, chairman of the Camera Club, reported that the next meeting will be on May 6 at 9 a.m. This will be Ladies Day and refreshments will be served. Michael Videtta of Lynn, who has won many photography competitions, will give a presentation on his unusual techniques.

Jim Boyd of Reading announced that the Stamp Club will meet May 29 at the Wakefield Library at 1:30 p.m.

The travel report was given by Henry Murphy of Reading. There is still room for a few more reservations for the Bermuda trip in November. On May 2 a full bus load will leave for the Pennsylvania Amish country on a four day trip. More that forty men have already signed to go to the Red Sox game at Fenway Park on June 14. Henry also reported that the used eyeglasses that the club has been collecting will be presented to the Lions Club who in turn will ship them to the needy in Honduras.

At the next meeting on May 14, Charles Henderson of Needham will speak about one of the most exciting options for people over 60. If you have not yet discovered Elderhostel, you or you and your wife may be missing one of the greatest privileges of being 60 or older. Elderhostel is a fast-growing experience whereby people can choose from over 850 colleges and over 2500 courses to study for one week. For $205, you get room, board, entertainment, socialization and instruction for one whole week in any state in the U.S. or abroad. The bonus is that you live, eat, attend classes and become friends with 30 to 35 persons like yourself from all over the country. There are no educational background requirements.

As always, this meeting will be open to all retired men within commuting distance of Wakefield. Meetings are held the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month in the First Parish Congregational Church in Wakefield. Coffee and donuts are served at 9 and the business meeting begins at 9:30. If you are a retired man, you owe it to yourself to check out the Men's Club, and see why 700 men belong to this group. There are no dues and no sponsor is needed.

Did you know?

It's no surprise that cats tend to be loners, while dogs are usually sociable, says International Wildlife magazine. Just go back 25 million years in time for an evolutionary clue. Back then, the wild creatures we know today as cats lived in forests. There they learned they could best sneak up on prey if they hunted alone. Ancestors of the domestic dog, on the other hand, lived on the grasslands. Rather than using the element of surprise to capture their prey, dogs discovered they could hunt down other animals better if they worked together as a team. This adaptation to their different natural habitats, explains why today, dogs are dogs, cats are cats.

It's true!

To help reduce airplane collisions with birds, Japan's All-Nippon Airways is painting large eyes on the turbines of one of its Boeing 747s, reports International Wildlife magazine. It's thought the eyes will scare birds away from the aircraft. If the technique works, the $40 paint job could save over $600,000 a year and perhaps prevent fatal crashes.

Restore a winter lawn

When a lawn has deteriorated over the winter, many times homeowners think the only solution is plowing it up and seeding or sodding. Don't be too hasty! A lawn often can be renovated without using these drastic measures. Fertilizers, weeding and seeding may be enough. However, a conscientious program must be followed according to Thurston Handley, Home Horticulture Specialist with the Middlesex County Cooperative Extension.

The main problem with many lawns is the build up of thatch. Thatch is an accumulation from stems and roots. It contains more woody material and does not decompose as fast as grass clippings. Thatch prevents air, water and fertilizer from reaching roots in proper quantities. This weakens the lawn and makes it vulnerable to insects and diseases. A thin layer of thatch is desirable because it decreases water evaporation, temperature changes and creates a mat providing a cushion effect. Thatch can be removed by raking or by using a power dethatcher.

When mowing, do not remove more than half of the foliage at a time. A desired height for a lawn is one and one-half inches. At this length, the lawn can build up an extensive root system to withstand drought that may occur in summer. This length also inhibits germination of weed seeds by shading.

Restore lawns to good health this spring, and for more information contact the Middlesex County Cooperative Extension, 105 Everett Street, Concord, Ma. 01742.

Violets are Blue

Short Takes

Violets are Blue Starring Sissy Spacek, Kevin Kline, Bonnie Bedelia. Directed by Jack Fiske. Produced by Mary Kay Powell. Screenplay by Naomi Foner. Rated PG-13 (profanity).

Most folks fantasize about the one that got away. So, when high school sweethearts Gussie (Sissy Spacek) and Henry (Kevin Kline) are reunited after 15 years, one can't help but wonder if the torch is still burning. And maybe it was on paper, but in this limp love affair it never gets past the smoke stage.

Not that a few (emphasis on few) sparks don't fly between Spacek and Kline, it's just that director Jack Fiske (Spacek's husband) relies heavily on meaningful glances, idyllic trysts and a rousing, yet dull, score in that best of Hallmark traditions. With the exception of Kline's cheated on wife, played by Bonnie Bedelia, the film sadly lacks substance.

Kline's character hoped to become a world-renowned journalist, and Spacek was going to follow him around the world. But, like most high school dreams, reality stepped in and Kline was left behind in Ocean City, Maryland running his father's small-time newspaper. And, in the truest of contrived storylines, Spacek went on to become a globetrotting photo journalist. It is when she returns home to visit her family that she and Kline pick up where they left off, regardless of his wife and child.

However, between the nervous laughter of their first meeting and the decisions they make in the slow-moving denouement, we never really get to know who Gussie and Henry are. The film fails to reach beyond the surface tensions of two people who long for the life the other leads. Even a subplot about evil developers fails to garner the dramatic integrity so needed in Violets are Blue.

The one true note in this off-key love ballad is Bedelia. This fine actress relays her honest, earth mother appeal after three minutes on screen. Contented, devoted and intelligent, there is never a doubt she knows the score, but doesn't want to play along. Actually, the same can be said of anyone discriminating enough to wait until Violets makes it to video, where it may hold up a little better.

Short Takes

Murphy's Law is little more than another of Charles Bronson's violent escapades. The body count is high, the weapons varied, and like other revenge flicks, we've seen it before. Rated R.

Wise Guys is a predictable comedy made quite entertaining by the barely concealed insanity of Danny DeVito and the naivete of Joe Piscopo. The two play Jersey hoodlums who decide to better themselves by ripping-off the Mob, much to the chagrin of the local, demented don. Rated R... 1/2

The vigilant sentry

ed in its path that are not on the map. A miniature video camera transmits a picture of the robot's surroundings to its communications center.

The Sentry gets its power from three 12-volt batteries and can run for twelve hours at a stretch. When the power is running low, the robot's sensors send it back to its recharging station, where it automatically connects with its charging outlet and recharges itself. The robot can be programmed to recharge at random intervals, so an intruder could not accurately predict when it would be off patrol.

One of the problems the Company encounters, says Leccese, is the fact that people are so used to seeing mobile robots in the movies that they don't realize what an amazing development the Sentry is. As he explains, all other real-world moving robots developed so far need wires to follow or someone on the other end operating remote controls in order to move them from place to place. "When you think about it," enthuses Leccese, "once you have an intelligent vehicle that has the ability to get from one point to another in a real environment, avoiding obstacles, avoiding blocked pathways, picking alternate routes to get there, you have one amazing technological breakthrough! Then the possibilities are almost limitless — the robots can survive alone in nuclear plants, hazardous waste disposal plants, clean rooms, or any other place where it is too expensive or too dangerous to have human beings."

Denning's robot is artificially intelligent, but the successes the Company has achieved so far would never have been possible without the right combination of people. First, there needs to be someone with far-reaching vision to see the endless possibilities of an autonomous robot, and who also has the energy, drive, obsessiveness, and knowledge to raise the necessary capital, recruit the right team, and stay focused on one primary goal until its successful completion. President and CEO R. Warren George II fills this role. He has managed to successfully convince a diverse combination of interdisciplinary engineers, computer scientists and technicians that this "never-done-before" autonomous robot can be built, as anyone who has watched the Sentry patrol around Denning's headquarters will attest.

If you happened to be at Boston's Museum of Science last Christmas, you would have seen the Sentry on display. It has also been tested in the facilities of two large local companies. Recently the Company announced the receipt of two orders for Sentries from Bayview Security Services to supplement its current security and surveillance activities at the Bayside Exposition Center and the World Trade Center (formerly the Commonwealth Pier) in Boston. Denning plans to commence commercial production in the third quarter of 1986.

The future of robotics is impossible to predict. Science fiction stories with robots as heroes have been around for decades. Now that real-world technology has caught up to our imagination, who knows? Maybe the Sentry's grandsons will be the researchers who discover the ultimate cure for cancer!

Prince Rupert, where they can drive (or walk) aboard one of Alaska's famous marine high-way ferries. The ships call at colorful fishing communities, and at the only capital city (Juneau) in the continental United States that is not accessible by road.

The state's ferries provide a dramatic yet relaxing introduction to Alaska. Still, it is the Alaska Highway, reaching from Dawson Creek, B.C., to Fairbanks, that captures the public's imagination. Completed in 1942 as a rough, muddy military supply route to Alaska, the highway was opened to the public shortly after World War II.

The road has been improved considerably since the war. Now, much of it is paved, and the entire distance is well-maintained and suitable for all-season travel. Lodges, service stations and villages are comfortably spaced along what appears to be passage through a virtually limitless progression of mountains, forests, valleys, rivers and wilderness lakes.

The highway is by no means isolated. Yet, almost anywhere along the 1,500 mile road to Fairbanks, you can pull over and find total solitude. And perhaps watch moose browse in roadside willow thickets. Photograph fireweed that splashes color across gravel river bars. Spot wild sheep on Rocky Mountain cliffs. Or take movies of black bears ambling along the roadway.

According to Film Bureau director, Mary Lou Crane, her office receives numerous phone calls daily for private homes of every description. With industry growth up 173% since 1980, producers are constantly calling with home requests ranging from haunted houses to mansions, and everything in between.

Aside from the fun of being involved in a production and seeing your home on film, there can be economic benefits as well. Location fees, which vary according to the scope of the production, are negotiated directly between the homeowner and the production company.

mittance to three to five separate concerts appearing in Framingham, Lowell, Salem, Worcester; and Portsmouth, Nashua, Manchester, Dover, Concord, N.H., and in Biddeford, Maine, all arranged by local Community Concert Associations.

To enjoy the coming performance of the New York Light Opera Company, one does not need to be an opera buff. The four singers and pianist present a unique and highly entertaining program of American Operetta, (the prelude to modern-day musical comedy.) They combine flawless musicianship with the delightful operetta repertoire — Offenbach, Victor Herbert, Romberg and more, with just a few props, lots of humor and even a touch of class.

The Music Director of the ensemble is Richard Bower, a pianist, conductor and vocal coach active in the New York area. The New York Times has praised his work, calling him "an indefatigable and musicianly pianist."

Judith Inglis, Soprano, has been praised in the New York press for her "formidable professionalism" (The Daily News) and is an experienced performer in operetta and the solo concert.

Secrets of Packing a Bag

"Packing is as easy as getting dressed in the morning.

The only thing to remember is that packing a bag is exactly the opposite of getting dressed," says America's Mr. Luggage, Walter Bialo, a former president of the Luggage and Leather Goods Manufacturers Association of America.

"For example, the last thing most of us put on are shoes. We put on underwear first; then, outerwear and shoes. It's exactly the opposite with well-packed luggage; for example, shoes go in first; then pants or skirts and, finally, the underwear."

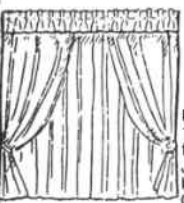

A free booklet on "roll-and-fold" packing tips is available from Ventura Travelware, Inc., Long Island City, NY 11101.

From Mr. Luggage's tips to the Alaska Highway, COMING ATTRACTIONS looks in a great many places for events of interest to all. If you have knowledge of a happening, and as you can see, the categories are rather wide, write, care of this local newspaper and tell us all about it. We would like to know.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Most of us miss out on the (so called) big prizes, Nobels, Oscars and Emmys. But we're all eligible for life's small pleasures; a pat on the back, an empty parking space, a four-pound bass, a crackling fire, hot soup, a cold beer, a favorite hymn unexpectedly heard. So don't fret about life's grand awards. Enjoy it's tiny delights. There are plenty for all of us! I don't think anyone can learn to be a great orator, but everyone can learn to be brief. It's very difficult to save any more souls after a twenty minute sermon. You would be right in assuming that I "hate" long-winded speeches, orations and yes, homilies. While vacationing in New Hampshire last summer my uncle, John Shea attended Mass at a village church. He loved the sermon which was only five minutes long. The pastor explained that he had just acquired a new puppy that got into his study and chewed up the notes he had made for the morning services. Uncle John couldn't resist getting his two cents worth in. He waited after Mass and said, "Father if there are any more puppies in that litter I would like to buy two and present them to two pastors I know."

Please don't even dream of having "one for the road." You may get a state trooper for a chaser.

In the wild and woolly western frontier a drinking party got out of hand in a saloon and some wise guy shot a dog in the foot. The dog painfully hobbled all the way home, strapped on his gun belt and limped all the way back to the saloon. He swung open the "swinging doors" and standing in the middle of the floor barked out "aw-right, who shot my paw?"

The idea for a youth ministry program at St. Patrick's Church in Stoneham was initiated by Rev. Paul Moriarty and Fr. Thomas Brunnick. In 1983, my personal friend and Woodchips fan, Rev. Mark Hannon, pastor, established the program for the high school youth. David Woods has been appointed director. Drop in for a visit.

Frank Mazzoni of Wilmington told me that he has a summer home near a lake in New Hampshire. Frank has invited me to "drop in some time." I will Frank but I must first find my "water wings."

I love to visit the Stone Zoo in Stoneham. Last week an attendant pointed at me and said to my wife, Kathy "thanks for bringing him back." I invited my cousin, Angelo Quaganti to come along with us next Sunday. "No thanks," he said, "I'd rather stay home." He explained why saying "my eldest daughter does the kangaroo walk, my second daughter talks like a parrot, my son laughs like a hyena, my wife watches me like a hawk, my cook is cross as a bear and my mother-in-law says I'm an old gorilla. So when I go anywhere I want a change of scenery.

Congratulations to Margo Cory of North Reading for receiving the Realtor Pin from Eastern Middlesex Board of Realtors President, Irene O'Neil. Laws like some buildings "lien" on one another. My house must have been owned or built by bootleggers. The foundation is "stoned," the walls are "plastered," and the windows all have that "paneful glazed" look.

I love to hear young boys play musical instruments, like at the North Reading Arts Workshop for Children piano recital. Students of Marcia Cutlip who participated were Allison Tuttle, Rhonda Tryder, Beth Wiklanski, William Butler. Students of Millie Cunningham were Timothy Kay, Deanna Nye, Michael O'Neil, Nancy Tryder, Scott Myette, Stacy Myette, Christine Butler and Kerry Blomberg. Students of Lucille Carberry were Cynthia Miller, Rebecca Foyte, Erika Lundgren and Stacy Rhoads. My dear mother tried and tried to have me learn to play the violin, but two cats meowing on the back fence under a full moon sounded better. My piano practicing days were brought to an abrupt end when my neighbor, Bill Mathews marched into my parlor with an axe (like the one at the head of this column) and shouted "for crying out loud Beachcomber try this axe on your piano!". In quick succession the harmonica, guitar and flute were tossed into the rubbish barrel. My Aunt Maria of Wilmington laughed at every failure. "Woodchipper" she said, "You are good for nothing!"

One night I got down on my knees and prayed "dear Lord, there must be something that I can do that will make my mother proud of me?" The next day I wrote the inspired words of the poem "Mother." It was written for my mother and all mothers everywhere. It was read on radio by Fr. Frank McFarland and published in the U.S., Ireland, England and Canada. I will submit it to the Editor of Middlesex East in May. I hope this Chip gives those who think they have two left feet, are all thumbs and are failures, the courage to find the latent talent within them.

Folks, if things go wrong and you cry, you have already lost. But, if things go wrong and you try, rejoice for you have already won!"

Spring is a beautiful season of the year. The trees, flowers and plants awaken from a winter's sleep. People gave hope to a new beginning as they wore new spring outfits on Easter Sunday. One young lady in particular looked as beautiful as a new star in a galaxy. Her charisma was readily apparent to me. She was purchasing an Easter flower plant and Johnny Moccia introduced her to me. Her name is Maryellen Cowhig, she attends Salem State and I am proud to include her as a Personality Winner. Dr. Albert Kelley is a foot doctor. He recently received the Paul Bunyan award and the Dr. Scholls commission as a Kentucky Colonel (That's corn country) he is now entitled to wear the "Blue Jay" shoulder patch. His wife Dotty was given a footstool and daughter Pat, a shoe horn.

ON YOUR FEET

Plantars Warts

Plantar warts are a common skin growth usually confined to the bottom of the foot and toes. It is presumed that warts are caused by an infection of the skin with a virus. These lesions are usually painful due to an increase in blood and nerve supply. Viruses, unlike bacteria and germs are not cells. They need the aid of the body's own skin cells to reproduce, and in the process cause a skin lesion.

Treatment of these lesions is considered essential so as to prevent their spread. Techniques for treatment are varied and depend a great deal on the doctor and the art he chooses to exercise. Techniques range from removal to the use of acid therapy.

U.S. reaps bumper crop of wind

The world's largest wind farm produces energy from more than 3,000 wind machines spread over 30,000 acres at one of California's windiest spots - Altamont Pass, 40 miles east of San Francisco. To catch the wind, the airplane propeller style machines are mounted on top of 40- to 60-foot high poles. A phenomenon of the 1980s, wind farms use a renewable energy source to generate electricity that is sold to public utilities.

HONOLULU — On certain farms, the crops look like giant airplane propellers sprouting from steel stalks. Some tower 140 feet. Others resemble huge eggbeaters.

What they grow is energy — using the newest methods to cultivate an old resource, the wind, to produce electricity to market to public utilities.

"An awful lot of wind blows over this country," says Thomas O. Gry, executive director of the American Wind Energy Association. But geography, as well as atmospheric and economic conditions, dictates where it is worthwhile to "farm" it.

The United States is windiest in New England, across the Great Plains from Montana to Texas, along the West Coast, and throughout the Hawaiian islands. There is a small wind farm on a mountain ridge in New Hampshire, but none in all of windy Wyoming, because the cost of power there is very low.

THREE LARGEST FARMS
Nationwide there are more than 13,000 commercial wind machines, Gray says. The largest wind farms are in three of California's windiest spots: Altamont Pass, 40 miles east of San Francisco, where more than 5,000 wind turbines share 30,000 rolling acres with grazing cattle; the Tehachapi Mountains, where 3,500 more rise from the high desert; and San Geronio Pass, where another 3,500 line the highway to Palm Springs.

Before 1981, there were none anywhere. A phenomenon of this decade, wind farms blew in with the passage of federal and state tax credits designed as incentives to develop renewable energy sources. They created an artificial boom, Gray admits. Critics called the new farms "tax farms." Advocates predicted that they could provide up to 10 percent of the nation's energy needs by the end of the century.

The federal tax credits expired at the end of 1985. Legislation pending in Congress to extend them does not include wind energy. But basic research will continue through 1987, says Jack Cadogan, a Department of Energy wind-program manager.

Gray estimates that production of new wind-generated electricity this year will be half of 1985's 500 megawatts, which was more than double that of 1984. This year for the first time, he says, more than half the wind equipment sold in this country will be foreign-made, most of it Danish. Denmark, second to the United States in use of wind energy, is offering subsidies to Danish investors to boost exports.

From the start, the U.S. wind-energy industry has had problems stabilizing. The reason: the wind itself.

ERRATIC ENERGY SOURCE

"Wind is the single most unpredictable, variable energy source," Gray says. "It can change direction and speed anytime. When it doubles in speed (10 to 20 mph), it's eight times as forceful, and this can happen in less than a second. Only in the last year and a half have wind machines been made to operate for a year without blades breaking off — and other breakdowns."

Even with favorable winds, all machines do not continuously spin at top speed. At times, actual power produced is only 20 percent of rated capacity.

Wind farming has been most successful in California. In 1985, their peak year, all the state's wind farms together sold a total of 652.8 million kilowatt-hours of electricity to Southern California Edison and Pacific Gas and Electric — enough to supply 108,000 typical California homes for a year.

The wind-generated electricity that Southern California Edison buys from the Tehachapi and San Geronio farms is less than 1 percent of the energy needed for its customers, spokesman Bob Krauch says, but it is helping postpone construction of another power plant.

U.S. Windpower, largest operator of wind machines at Altamont Pass, plans to put 800 more turbines in the ground this year, for a total of 3,000.

"A computerized communications network runs all the machines as a single power plant," explains Windpower spokesman Laurie Galbraith. A system of transformers and transmission lines generates and delivers the electricity to the utility's grid.

Although tiny compared with California, Hawaii ranks second among the states in the use of wind energy. Strong tradewinds that sweep across the islands most of the year make wind one of its most important energy resources. Experts estimate that wind alone could provide 10 times the energy needed to meet Hawaii's current demands.

The state's largest wind farm — atop a mountain ridge that overlooks Oahu's north shore — was recently dedicated amid traditional Hawaiian blessings, chants, and dances.

WIND FOR LAMPS OF OAHU

The $24 million high-tech farm, named Makani Moa'e, which means tradewinds, is expected to produce enough electricity for the annual energy needs of 5,200 typical residential customers on Oahu. It will save 62,000 barrels of imported oil.

"Honolulu has the longest energy supply line in the country, stretching thousands of miles. We believe wind will be an essential part of Oahu's future energy mix," says C. Dudley Pratt Jr., president of Hawaiian Electric Industries.

Wind machines also are scattered around on the neighboring islands of Hawaii and Maui. Among the 250 on Hawaii, two are positioned near the southernmost tip of the United States.

CHILDREN CAN SEEK AND FIND comfort and security from Pillow People during playtime as well as bedtime. Psychologists say these decorative and friendly pillows can fill the role of the "security blanket" or other objects that children cling to during their early stages of development.

Pillow People are kid pleasers

The newest children's toys which double as bedtime companions, and may make the security blanket obsolete, are called "Pillow People" - cuddly pillows each with its own personality.

Pillow People, one of the new products released by Springs Industries Performance Products Division, are for children in the three-year-old to 10-year-old range. The pillows come in six different personalities: Sweet Dreams, Pillow Fighter, Rock-A-Bye Baby, Punky Pillow, Mr. Sandman and Big Footsteps.

Many child psychologists have stressed the importance of "transitional objects" - items that children carry about during their stages of early development, when a child's world seems to be in constant change - because the objects represent security and stability.

Children may have their pillow friends accompany them from play time to bedtime. The soft yet durable construction of Pillow People enables a child to play all day with these characters and still stick with them when the sun sets. In fact, they may rival and even replace

"security blankets." Each of these pillow characters will be available in the home furnishings departments of most fine stores this June.

Hogan-Berry plant sale

The Hogan/Berry Association is sponsoring a plant sale with the Friends of Hathorne Greenhouse on three consecutive Saturdays, May 10, 17, and 24. The sale will take place from 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. at the Friends of Hathorne Greenhouse at Hogan Regional Center in Danvers, and also at the John T. Berry Rehabilitation Center, in North Reading. Watch for the signs on Route 62 at either location. The proceeds of the sale are used to benefit all the retarded children and adults at Hogan and Berry, through the Association, and to purchase plant materials and supplies that are used in therapeutic programs at the greenhouses.

Most of the plants are raised by clients, under the supervision of staff and volunteers. This marks the 9th year of our sale.

Typical flowers in flats include ageratum, alyssum, petunias, marigolds, pansies, and impatiens, plus many others. Flats of vegetables include tomatoes, peppers, lettuce, eggplant, squash, cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, as well as herbs. Hanging baskets and pots are available with geraniums, begonias, impatiens, and petunias. There are many kinds of houseplants, in pots of all sizes. The sale will help beautify your home and yard, and help retarded citizens at the same time.

Storage shed practical and attractive

THIS ATTRACTIVE OUTDOOR SHED takes up little room, yet it's large enough to store yard tools out of sight and weather. The shed is built with plywood, framing lumber and Z-Brick. Shown here is the Inca Used style.

Now is the ideal time to build that storage shed you've been thinking about building all winter. The one that will allow you to clean out the garage and provide year around storage for your seasonal tools and supplies.

Are your plans complete? Is the shed going to be an attractive addition to your yard? The Z-BRICK Company can answer some of your questions and eliminate some doubt with its recently introduced 32 page Project Booklet.

One of the many projects in the booklet is a step-by-step diagram and instruction sheet on how to build a storage shed that will be structurally sound and attractive with the use of decorative Z-BRICK.

Z-BRICK is an all mineral brick that is less than 1/2" thick but provides weatherproofing, fireproofing and even adds an insulating factor to exterior siding and interior walls.

When your shed is complete you will have the appearance of a heavy masonry project but without the expense of hiring a professional craftsman.

Any do-it-yourselfer can create a professional appearing brick pattern with Z-BRICK. The many colors and textures available in Z-BRICK will enable you to create your own unique yet professional brick pattern.

Z-BRICK is available in home centers, hardware stores and lumberyards throughout the United States. The Project Booklet can be purchased directly from the manufacturer by sending $1.50 to: Z-BRICK Company, Dept. 60, P.O. Box 628, Woodinville, WA 98072.

Ceramic Tile — A Great Way To Get Floored

Two ceramic tile shapes in two colors are combined to create a durable, easily maintained floor that becomes a design element in this welcoming living area.

Time was, ceramic tile in the American home was white, 4" square and found in the bathroom and/or kitchen. Today, ceramic tile is at home in every room in the house in a rainbow of colors, a myriad of shapes and a collection of sizes.

Members of the Ceramic Tile Distributors of America report that the use of ceramic tile continues to grow. Today's consumer is looking for quality and value, and ceramic tile meets those requirements. It never needs waxing, stripping, refurbishment or professional care to stay beautiful and new looking. It won't stain, cut, scorch or mar and even strong disinfectant's can't harm its colors and textures.

Ceramic tile can make a design statement on its own, be a part of an overall design scheme or provide the background for important furnishings and art. The selection available in the showrooms of CTDA members is as diverse as the tastes of today's consumers.

From the entry to the family room to the hearth, ceramic tile is used in living spaces. Living rooms and dining rooms from the very formal to the very casual feature ceramic tile floors of distinctive beauty and convenience. Game rooms, laundry rooms, "mud rooms" and children's rooms are ideal areas for these floors because ceramic tile can retain its beautiful-as-new appearance and offer rugged durability at the same time.

And ceramic tile remains the favorite flooring for kitchen and bath application. Country kitchens look terrific with floors featuring warm, earthy ceramic tile colors and the kitchen that has gone hi-tech showcases sleek efficient floors in black or white or strong primary colors or stripes. As the American kitchen has expanded to be more than simply a food preparation area, so too has the use of ceramic tile floors for these multipurpose areas of the home. The beauty and easy maintenance of ceramic tile makes it a natural choice for floors in these rooms which are also used for dining, hobbies, family gatherings and entertaining guests while good things cook.

The American bathroom has "grown up" and it is not uncommon to find a bathroom which provides far more than just a space for bathing and grooming. Whirlpool tubs, exercise equipment, atriiums, relaxation areas and dressing rooms are just some of the amenities found in contemporary bathrooms and ceramic tile offers the dual qualities of beauty and easy care for floors in these heavily used areas.

In recent years the heating and cooling qualities of ceramic tile have made it the perfect choice in passive solar energy installations. Ceramic tile floors in these applications are appealing and inviting, and technically are highly efficient. As more and more homeowners remodel for greater economy in heating and cooling in their homes, they are becoming aware of the multiple benefits of ceramic tile and extending its use throughout the house.

The selection of ceramic tile floors in remodeling projects makes good sense in every area of the home. The floor is the "foundation" of the room and whether the remodel is extensive or cosmetic, the addition of a ceramic tile floor adds quality and value to the home. In today's dual-paycheck households, homeowners are shopping for quality materials that offer value given/value received features. In addition, these households are busy and often include energetic young people. Ceramic tile offers rugged durability that is kept ready-for-company pretty with a mild detergent and water solution and a damp mop.

Filtration aids in...

Keeping pool water clean and clear

Proper filtration and chemical use play important roles in providing clean and clear pool water, a major concern of all home swimming-pool owners.

As a matter of fact, they complement each other, according to Manville, producer of AquaCel diatomite filter aid. Effective filtration normally reduces the amount of chemicals required for a sanitary pool.

The filter's main job, says Manville, is to remove dirt and other matter from the water to clarify it. Complete, or nearly so, removal of particulates from the water by filtration permits the chlorine to effectively destroy bacteria, viruses and soluble organic matter.

The two most commonly used home pool filters employ either diatomite or sand. Diatomite filters require a "precoat" of diatomite filter aid on the filter screen. Actual filtration takes place through this precoat.

When the proper amount of precoat is used the precoat will be about 1/16 inch thick.

Care should be taken to follow the recommendations of the filter manufacturer or the information on the back of an AquaCel bag regarding the proper amount of filter powder to use.

The diatomite precoat in addition to removing unwanted dirt particles also prevents these same particles from plugging up the filter element cloth or wire cover, thus reducing filter element cleaning operations.

If the filter elements become plugged or clogged, follow the cleaning directions supplied by your filter manufacturer or consult with your pool water chemical supplier.

Under typical operating conditions, the filtration cycle is over and it's time to clean the filter when the filter pressure gauge reaches the manufacturer's maximum recommended level.

Thorough cleaning will extend the time between cleaning.

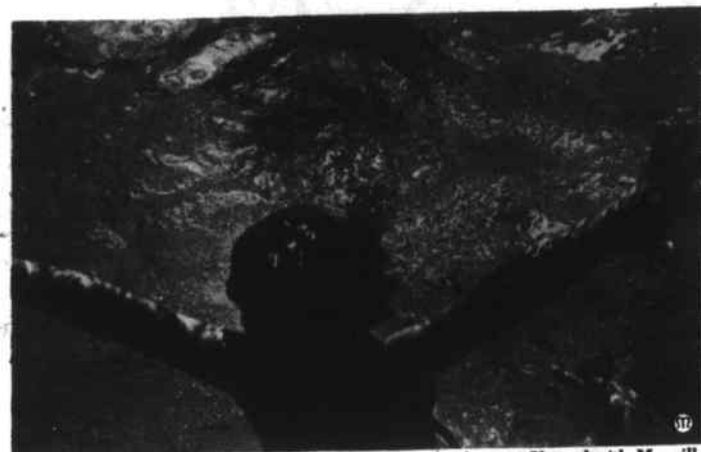

The other major types of home filters use beds of sand, or sand and gravel, through which the water flows, leaving dirt particles trapped within the sand. Pool owners with sand filters should clean them when the dirt accumulated in the sand bed slows down the flow of water through the filter.

Sand filters are cleaned by backwashing. That is, pool water is forced through the filter in the direction opposite from normal filtering.

At times of heavy use — when all the friends come to swim — owners of diatomite-filtered pools will hardly notice a change in water clarity, according to Manville, but pool owners with sand filters might.

(One way to check your pool water clarity is to drop a "clarity test disc," available from your Manville distributor, to the bottom at the deepest point. If the black and red color markings printed on the disc are clearly defined, your pool filtration is working well).

THIS CHILD PLAYS in clean and sparkling clear pool water filtered with Manville AquaCel diatomite filter powder.

Protect your new roof...

Blustery spring wind can be the cause of costly and damaging shingle blow-off

Unfortunately, for many homeowners, when the wind whips up, the shingles on their roof blow off.

This common and costly problem can be mitigated, however, by adherence to proper application procedures and use of a wind tested and approved shingle.

Whether you do the reroofing job yourself or hire a professional roofing contractor, be sure to demand that shingles be secured and applied properly. Failure to do so not only may result in wind damage but affect the validity of the manufacturer's warranty.

New roofing shingles can be secured by nails or pneumatically driven staples. When using nails, shingles should be fastened with standard 1/4-in. flat head roofing nails of sufficient length to penetrate into the deck.

Check manufacturer's application instructions. In general, however, the nails per shingle should be placed just below the black self-sealing stripe and driven into the shingle straight and flush with the shingle tab.

Some larger shingles may require four or six nails. Tests conducted jointly by Manville and Underwriters Laboratories (UL) have proven that, when applied correctly, staples hold every bit as well as nails. An important advantage to the use of staples is that they typically speed the application process.

Staples should be applied with the crown of the staple parallel with and below the self-sealing stripe to a depth flush with the shingle. Further, to conform with most manufacturers' warranties, staples must be driven with an approved pneumatic stapler.

Air pressure gauge is mandatory with pressure set at 90 psi. Staples must be zinc coated, no less than 16 gauge and used on a one-for-one basis with nails. Shingles should be stapled from the end nearest the shingle just laid, proceeding across the surface.

Consumers should be aware that not all

WIND DAMAGE to residential roofing can be a costly problem to homeowners. Experts at Manville advise homeowners to be sure shingles are secured properly and to insist on a shingle which has passed Underwriters Laboratories wind resistance test. The entire line of Johns-Manville fiber glass shingles carries the UL Wind Resistance Label.

manufacturers have approval from UL for use of staples for their shingles. However, the entire line of Johns-Manville fiber glass shingles is approved and fully warranted for use with properly applied staples.

In addition to how the shingle is secured, the design and quality of the shingle can make a difference in its ability to withstand wind. Underwriters Laboratories applies stringent wind tests to shingles and, to those that pass, UL awards a "UL Wind Resistance Label."

In brief, the UL wind test includes the use of a wind-generating machine capable of delivering a stream of air at a velocity of 60 miles per hour. This stream of air is applied against a test panel of shingles adjusted to various inclines and distances from the machine for a two hour period.

"RegalWood" from Johns-Manville is an example of a shingle that has passed the UL wind test and is warranted against gale force winds to 54 miles per hour.

Composed of wear resistant fiber glass, RegalWood is an affordable fiber glass shingle that provides the rustic look of wood with an extra dimension of style and distinct geometric pattern.

RegalWood has a UL Class A fire rating and is covered by 25 year pro-rated warranty. A full color brochure on RegalWood, #RF-570, is available from Manville.

Moreover, the entire line of Johns-Manville fiber glass shingles has passed the UL wind resistance test and each carries the UL Wind Resistance Label. To obtain the free color brochure on RegalWood fiber glass shingles #RF-570 or a free full color brochure on the complete Johns-Manville shingle line #RF-316, write Manville Service Center, 1601 23rd Street, Denver, CO 80216.

Bringing your new shrub home

You're excited! You've just bought a new shrub, and you are about to bring it home. To make this as easy as it sounds, the Ortho book "How to Select & Care for Shrubs & Hedges" says to be sure to follow these simple pieces of advice:

• Unless you plan to plant your new shrub the same day you buy it, don't bring it home in a cut metal can. It is very difficult to water a cut can correctly and much easier to handle if the can is not cut at all.

• Don't try to bring your new shrub home in a car that does not have enough room. Protect the shrub by securely wrapping it with a cloth or other material. An especially leafy plant left exposed in a speeding automobile can quickly become windburned.

• Most garden centers and nurseries will deliver without charge. Both you and your new plant will benefit from this service!

Seaweed for mulching

For the gardener looking to lighten his or her work load, a mulch of seaweed is nothing less than a miracle.

Believe it or not, that slimy seaweed we all try desperately to avoid at the beach is a great mulch. According to Ortho's "Easy Maintenance Gardening," it contains an excellent source of minerals and nutrients which benefit both the plant and the soil.

By shredding the seaweed, this mulch can even be used as a layer around the most attractive plants.

Save Space With A Pocket Door

Are you thinking of adding on or remodeling your present home? The high cost of new housing has prompted many families to think of upgrading or renovating their present residence—adding rooms, modernizing bathrooms and kitchens, enlarging family rooms, etc.

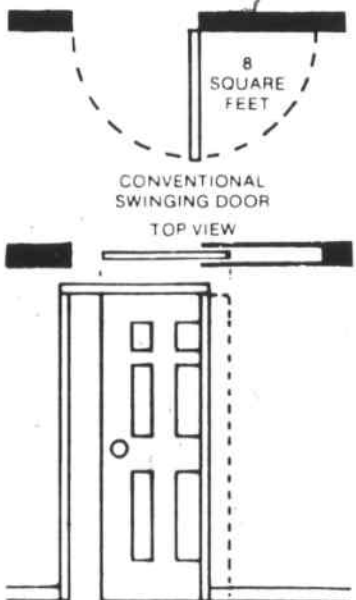

Making the best use of space is, of course, one of the major considerations whenever remodeling is undertaken. Smart homeowners look for every possible way to squeeze more usable space out of every square foot.

Pocket doors can help you do just that! Pocket doors are so named because they do not swing on hinges, but slide completely hidden from view into a wall (pocket) when not in use. Conventional doors can take up to 8 square feet of floor space for "swinging" room. Pocket doors on the other hand, allow the floor to be used right up to the door opening.

The average handyman should be able to install pocket doors using common tools. You must plan ahead for their use, however, as the framing must be in place before drywall or paneling is installed. Pocket door frames come in all popular sizes and many of them are universal (marked for cutting to fit your needs).

When selecting pocket door frames, be sure to check such things as: Is the track removable? Is the track designed so the rollers cannot jump the track? Will the rollers handle my door smoothly? Will I be able to remove the door easily?

Before installing the door into the frame, make absolutely certain that you seal the door, especially around the edges to prevent absorption of moisture and possible warping. Check with your local paint/building supply dealer for materials and correct procedures.

For more information on pocket doors and a free brochure on how to install them, write to L. E. Johnson Products, Inc., P. O. Box 1126, Dept. HT, Elkhart, Indiana, 46515.

Use native plants and flowers for landscaping

Remember that lush field of wild flowering plants you noticed as you drove home yesterday? Well, it isn't as difficult as you might think to recreate a similar landscape at home. While local nurseries and wholesale plant growers usually have just a limited number of native species available, consumer demand for these plants is at an all-time high.

So, more and more homeowners are taking matters into their own hands by "venturing into the wild" to get the native plants they want.

According to the authors of Ortho's new book, "Landscaping with Wildflowers & Native Plants," two ways that you can secure samplings of wild plants and flowers that are indigenous to your area is to collect wild seeds and make cuttings.

The first thing you must do, whether you are collecting seeds or making cuttings, is to decide which native plants and flowers you want in your garden. If you are unfamiliar with the plants from your area, a good reference book with pictures will help. Once you have identified these, you should do the following:

Collect wild seeds

1. Study the flower or plant you are interested in while it is in bloom. It is easier to identify each species at this time.
2. Place a stake next to each plant from which you will be collecting seeds. This will help you find the plant easily when you return.
3. Collect the seed when it is mature. Depending on species and region, this usually happens between August and November.

4. Pull the seed off gently so as not to hurt the rest of the plant.
5. Gather each seed and place in a separate paper bag and label. Note: Do not use plastic bags; the seed may rot or mold.

Make cuttings

Softwood cuttings:

1. These come from most green plants. They are pliant and still have the leaves attached.
2. Collect in the spring before the plants bud.

3. When making the cutting, either gently snap or cut off the desired portion and take care not to hurt the rest of the plant.
4. Immediately wrap the cutting in a damp cloth to prevent wilting.

Hardwood cuttings:

1. These come from deciduous trees or shrubs. They are not pliant and do not have leaves.
2. Collect in the fall or early winter.

3. When making the cutting it should be between 6 and 8 inches in length. Cut the top end square and the bottom end at a slant. This will help identify which end to plant once you bring it home.

4. Be sure to select cuttings from last season's growth.
5. Remember to check with local authorities if you plan to make cuttings in national parks or forests—you may need a permit.

If you follow these easy steps, you should be on your way to starting a "naturally" beautiful garden.

USING NATIVE PLANTS and flowers in landscaping has become increasingly more popular with garden lovers everywhere. A book like Ortho's "Landscaping with Wildflowers & Native Plants" will help you identify and select the right kind of plants for your gardening needs.

morning. The soil should be moistened to a depth of six to eight inches.

To test the effectiveness of watering, wait 12 hours after you water and then poke a screwdriver into the ground. If it goes down about six inches without much resistance, then the lawn is probably wet enough.

Mowing

How often a lawn should be cut depends on the type of grass, your watering and fertilization routine, and the time of year.

During very hot weather, lawns can go as long as three weeks without mowing. In the spring and fall, weekly cuttings are probably needed in most areas of the country.

Fertilizing

Most everyone knows that lawns should be fertilized in the spring, but it's equally important to fertilize them in the fall. In most cases, fertilizer should not be used during mid-summer.

Fertilizing provides lawns with many required nutrients. The best bet is to select a so-called "complete" fertilizer which contains the three primary nutrients—nitrogen, phosphate and potassium.

Bags of fertilizer display the percentages they contain of the elements, as in 24-4-8. The first listing is nitrogen, followed by phosphate and potassium in that order.

For most lawns, the first number should be three times higher than the second, and the third should be double the second. However, local climate, soil conditions and other factors may call for different ratios.

Insects

While proper watering, mowing and fertilizing will help curb most weed problems in lawns, insects are another matter and may require the use of an insecticide.

Among the treatments available for insect infestation of lawns is Ortho's Diazinon® Soil & Turf Insect Control, which controls ants, grubs,

How to solve seven houseplant problems

Problem 1

Lack of Light: This problem is indicated by weak and spindly new growth with large gaps between the leaves. Plants bending their stems and leaves in the direction of available light is another sign of lack of light.

Solution: Gradually move the plants to a brighter location, keeping them well watered. If a brighter location is not available, provide artificial light.

Problem 2

Sunburn or Bleaching: Dead tan or brown patches on leaves exposed to direct sunlight is a sign of sunburn.

TOWN CRIER, APRIL 30, 1986.....A5

Sometimes the plants will remain green, but the growth is stunted.

Solution: Move the plants that cannot tolerate direct sun to a shaded area, or reduce the light intensity with curtains or window shades when direct sun shines on the plants. Trim damaged leaves and keep plants watered.

Problem 3

Too Little Water: With this problem, leaves are small and may dry and become brittle. Growth of the plants may be stunted. Bleached areas may occur between the veins.

Solution: Water plants immediately and thoroughly. If the soil is completely dry, add a bit of wetting agent (which you can buy at garden centers) or soak the entire pot in water for a couple of hours.

Problem 4

Too Much Water: Plants fail to grow and leaves may wilt, lose their glossiness, and become light green or yellow. The roots are brown and mushy without white tips.

Solution: If the plants are severely wilted without white root tips, discard them. Less severely affected plants should not be watered until the soil is barely moist. Provide good drainage to prevent this problem by using light soil mixes.

Problem 5

Nitrogen Deficiency: With this problem, the oldest leaves—usually the lowest ones—turn yellow and may drop. Growth is slow, new leaves are small, and the whole plant may be stunted.

Solution: For a quick response, apply a foliar fertilizer, such as RA-PID-GRO Plant Food. Fertilize houseplants with a 5-10-5 fertilizer, added at regular intervals.

Problem 6

Aphids: Aphids, tiny, non-winged, green, soft-bodied insects, cluster in the buds, young stems, and leaves. Leaves curl, are discolored, reduced in size, and may be coated by a shiny or sticky substance.

Solution: Use an indoor plant insect spray containing Orthene, resmethrin, or pyrethrins.

Problem 7

Fungus Gnats: These small, slender, dark insects will fly around when plants are disturbed. They frequently run across the foliage and soil and may also be found on windows. Roots may be damaged, and seedlings may die.

Solution: Spray with a household insect spray containing Diazinon®. Repeated applications may be necessary.

HEY LOOK US UNDER

Our improvements will make a noticeable improvement in the way you mow

John Deere Riding Mowers now carry a new 30-inch high-performance mower and a better 6 1/2-bushel rear bagger option. The mower deck is now stamped from 105-inch steel. Ten percent heavier than last year for extra durability. The bag is rolled under for 38 percent more airflow to improve cutting and bagging in tall, moist grass. Optional gauge wheels provide smoother mowing on hills and rolling terrain.

The new bagger has an inner sealing lip which reduces grass blowout, plus a molded screen to keep the chute centered for cleaner bagging. It also has a new no-rivet hopper top, injection-molded for durability. With windows that snap in for easy replacement. A hold-down strap holds the lid firmly in place. Stop in and look the new John Deere Riding Mowers over and under. Check the new features. And the prices. You'll notice a lot of improvements.

Tiled Cook's Island Center of Attention in New Great Kitchens

When kitchens are the focal point of the home, (and when haven't they been?) a large ceramic tile island can make the kitchen work better. An island provides space preparing food, serving, and has room for helpers to join in.

With stove top elements as part of the counter, the island becomes the hub of activity as we socialize, relax, eat, and cook in today's great kitchens.

Today's homes are smaller, yet we are using the spaces wisely. Tiled countertops and cook islands are great answers depending on your plan.

Caring for your lawn — you decide the balance

Caring for your lawn should provide pleasure, not pain and, while some people want to work on their grass every day, others may not have the time or the inclination.

The key to success, no matter what your maintenance approach, is to have a balanced program of lawn care.

For example, a lawn that is watered and fertilized regularly will have fewer problems with weeds and disease.

However, it also will grow faster and require more frequent mowing. So, if you don't want to mow a lot, cut down on watering and fertilizing.

Watering

Lawns need to be watered when the soil begins to dry out. The signs of this are when the grass has a blue-green or smoky tinge and footmarks stay instead of disappearing right away.

The best time to water is early

Home improvements revitalize, refresh for spring

SOLID VINYL SIDING gives homes the look of natural wood clapboard but never needs painting. Its advantages over other siding materials have made it the No. 1 choice of the American homeowner.

Insulating Window Fashions Decorate

Window treatments insulated with Dacron Hollofil II have been approved for a residential energy tax credit by the Federal Government, according to Stanley B. Fradin, president of The Rockland Mills, a division of Rockland Industries of Baltimore, manufacturer of "Wonderful Windows."

Dacron Hollofil II has remarkable insulating properties, says Sheldon Searle, marketing representative for fiberfill products. The hollow fibers trap the air, and help make the product as energy-saving in summer as in winter, because it will reduce air conditioning bills as efficiently as heating bills.

Wonderful windows may be used on all types of fenestration including glass doors, skylights, and greenhouse roofs.

Wonderful windows is a patented four layer system combining Dacron Hollofil II and Mylar with other insulating materials. The insulating layers are covered with decorative fabric to form a fashionable and functional window treatment. To complete the system, the finished unit attaches to the window frame on a patented sliding track or with a magnetic seal.

The system can take the form of decorative balloon, Austrian or Roman shades, or the traditional side draw drapery. It is offered in do-it-yourself or custom versions.

Wonderful windows has been independently laboratory tested for a R value of 7.69, four times higher than combination storm windows.

Great barrier grief? Decorative lattice fences it out

A project needn't be expensive to be a major home improvement. Backyard fences or sunscreens for a deck, says the Wood Moulding and Millwork Producers Association, are good examples. Build them as do-it-yourself projects and you'll save some money.

Lattice, one of the most popular wood moulding types, can be used to build a fence to act as a visual barrier or as a barrier against wind, an unsightly view or unwanted animals.

It also makes an excellent screen for blocking the sun, adding privacy or architectural interest. It can also serve as an interesting backdrop for flowers or shrubs.

Since lattice is decorative, make sure the framework and posts are constructed of sturdy lumber. Be sure the lattice, frames and posts are properly weather-proofed with a good finish.

Among the more popular lattice patterns that can be used as decorative fences or sunscreens are horizontal and vertical crosshatch and diagonal crosshatch. Other handsome patterns include horizontal, vertical, diamond and herringbone.

Making Sure a Home Looks Well, Works Well

Vinyl siding: Popular choice among homeowners

Now that the fair-weather days of spring are almost here, homeowners across the country are faced with a decision they have been putting off all winter: "Should I repaint my home (again) or invest in siding?"

Every year, more and more homeowners are making their preference clear. They have decided to cross "exterior painting" off their list of household chores and go with solid vinyl siding as the smart choice.

For the first time in history, solid vinyl has surpassed aluminum as the most popular American siding material. Statistics show that use of vinyl siding has increased nearly 500 percent over the past 10 years.

And all indications are that this trend will continue.
